Teachers blame board's attorney for duration of strike

Strike settled, classes resume in District 63

by Nancy Keraminas

Students from East Maine School District 63 returned to classes two weeks later than most other area school children but, despite the new two-year contract ratified between their teachers and the district school board, rumor, rhetoric and dire forecasts regarding the labor dispute are still in their midst. Children and teachers expressed happiness at being back in the classroom, however.

"It's about time we got back to school," a Washington School third grader said.

Neither side claims total satisfaction with the agreement, expected to be approved by the full board after Bugle deadlines. In addition, those on the teachers' side of the bargaining table blame the board and the board's negotiator Fred Lifton for the long duration of the talks.

"The main source of resistance (to settlement) was the board's attorney who was working two strikes," said the teacher's counsel Jim Chiakulas, who said if he personally would have experienced the juggling of time and the "poor mental stress," of simultaneously negotiating District 63's settlement and one for the Naperville schools before Labor Day, "I would be removed from one of those negotiating teams."

"I'm pleased that it concluded and I'm sorry it took so long," Lifton countered, attributing the duration of talks to the district's deficit financial situation.

"Times are not good and people are very sensitive to pay raise issues," Lifton continued. "There's a substantial anti-tax feeling now. I don't think it's anti-teacher, though teachers are paid very well; the top salary is in the mid-fifties and that's not bad."

"I realize other people make less than the teachers," a Stevenson School educator said as she exited the auditorium at Apollo School where the teachers met to ratify the contract. "You have to pay top salaries in order to attract people into the profession."

While other issues were settled such as maternity leave policy and reformatting classes to allow for an increase in pupils, money factors will continue to be a problem for the district.

For one, the existing 1992 budget deficit will be increased from $2.4 million to a projected $3 million as a result of the settlement, reportedly in excess of six per-

by Bud Besser

The new contract for teachers in school district 63 expires in 1993. At that time it is likely many of the same people will be back at the bargaining table, pressures will mount as the opening day of school approaches, and the possibility of the children being used as pawns will once again take place.

We're sure we're revealing an extreme naïvete to suggest there should be a better way to solve these teacher-school board confrontations.

Because each neighboring school district is wired into every other local district, the benefits and salary increases of each district are similar. Somehow, the pushing and pulling in district 63 seem unnecessary.

Why can't the teachers' union and school board set up a schedule six months before the end of the present contract to begin seriously negotiating the next contract? Together, they could review what is taking place in school districts throughout the Chicagoland suburbs. They could review contracts in the Glenview 34 school district, as well as the Park Ridge district 64 and the Des Plaines school district 62. These districts are similar in size and have comparable problems.

District 63's school board and the teachers' union could then set a six-month agenda setting a timetable for discussing different areas of negotiation. When they get down to crunch Continued on Page 31

Oketo Avenue residents protest planned house

by Sheilya Hackett

Seven neighbors don't want a house built at 8105 Oketo Avenue, Niles. The residents voiced strong opposition to the proposed new construction at the Sept. 9 meeting of the Niles Plan Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals.

Niles builder Bogdan Piechowicz, 6773 N. Milwaukee Ave., plans to build a raised ranch at the location. He and his attorney, John Pikarski, asked for a variation from a required 50-foot frontage to 30 feet and a variation in lot area from 6,250 sq. ft. to 3,706 sq. ft. Most lots in the area average 45 feet in width, according to a Code Enforcement Department source.

After extensive debate, the board allowed the request, but required the builder to keep a three-foot side yard on the north side of the building with no overhang. It stipulated the building's south side set back be equal with a corner lot at Keeney Street and Osceola Avenue and a two-car garage be built on the back of the property.

Commissioner Angelo Troiani said the size of the house would depend on the average setback of nearby homes. The builder had asked to extend the required 18 foot width of the house to 22 feet.

Prior to the board ruling, residents berated the proposed 18-22 x 55' house. A resident, of 8108 Oketo, said it is "...a sausage

Recycling trailer plants new roots

Richardson said some of his old customers from Niles have not as yet visited his new post on Golf Road, but he is hopeful word will spread and they will soon be bringing him their aluminum scrap for cash.

Richardson is also encouraging residents of nearby condominiums along Golf Road to begin recycling and will even supply bags.

MG police to etch residents' car windows

Morton Grove police are offering residents a way to protect their cars from theft—or at least, increase their chances of recovery if the vehicle is stolen.

Saturday, Oct. 5, a technician from the Globe Glass and Mirror Company of Chicago and Arlington Heights will be on hand to etch residents' vehicle identification numbers (VIN) into the base of their car windows at the Village Hall Parking Lot, 6101 Cap-

Backing car strikes woman in parking lot

A 34-year-old Chicago woman is in intensive care in St. Francis Hospital, Evanston, after being struck by a backing car in Skokie the morning of Sept. 8.

According to Skokie Police Officer Michael Ruth, a car driven by a Skokie woman, 79, accelerated in reverse as the driver attempted to leave a parking lot in the 4900 block of Dempster Street. Her car struck the Chicago woman and two parked cars 108 feet away.

Smoking materials blamed for fire at warehouse

The afternoon of Sept. 4, an official making the rounds of a warehouse at Lawncare Products, 8220 Austin Ave., Morton Grove, discovered 12 ft. flames leaping from a stack of boxed garden plant pots.

The flames activated the firm's fire alarm and sprinkler system, but due to the nature of the plastic materials in the plant, a large amount of water was needed and firefighters extinguished the flames.

Fire Department investigators determined the $3,500 blaze was caused by smoking materials.

Morton Grove's Traffic Safety Commission moved closer to a comprehensive handicap parking space policy, using a model now in existence in Skokie. Two residences in the village now have these reserved spaces, but two additional requests have been received for the special parking spots.

Chairman Lee Tamraz also inquired in Lincolnwood, Niles and other communities regarding such ordinances. Niles has no reserved handicap spots on its residential streets and the Lincolnwood ordinance did not seem to reflect Morton Grove's needs, members of the commission felt.

"Skokie has lived with this situation for 12 years," Tamraz said.

Skokie does not grant a reserved space to a household that has off-street parking accessible to the disabled resident and it stipulates the disability must be permanent and to someone who resides in that village more than half the year. Individuals requesting the consideration must provide medical verification as well as vehicle identification annually. Other cars or people using the designated space are ticketed and their owners liable for a fine of up to $500.

Two petitions are pending on this question, one from a Fernald Avenue resident with three rented

Before her election to the district board, she was a member of the District 63 Board of Educa-

Chicago Botanic Garden September planting tips

Even though Labor Day signals an "unofficial" end to summer, there is still plenty to do in the garden. According to experts at the Chicago Botanic Garden, September is an ideal time to do many things both outdoors and indoors.

According to the Botanic Garden, among things which should be done outdoors are:

- Divide daylilies (Hemerocallis), in early September to give them sufficient time to heal before winter.

- Lawns can be fertilized and dethatched or core aerated at this time. New lawns can be seeded during September and early October.

- Apply broadleaf weed control to the lawn.

- Take cuttings of annuals such as impatiens, geraniums and begonias to be kept over winter.

- Dig tuberous roots of dahlia and begonia tubers to store for winter storage.

- Continue to harvest vegetables including tomatoes, peppers and beans but stay alert for frosts. Either cover vegetable plants to protect or pick all ripe vegetables if a frost is imminent.

- Allow collards, kale and Brussels sprouts to be subjected to frost before harvesting - this enhances the flavors.

- Dig potatoes in late September and October when tops of the plants have died down.

- Harvest everbearing raspberries. When harvest is completed, prune out all canes that have already produced fruit.

- Begin to harvest winter squash and pumpkins late in the month.

- Harvest ripe apples before they fall to avoid bruising.

- Check apple trees and fruits for San Jose scale that appears as small red specks on the branches. If it is found, put a note on the calendar to spray dormant oil early next spring.

For work indoors, the Garden recommends:

- Gardenia, Christmas cactus and azalea should remain outdoors as long as night temperatures do not fall below 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

- Cool temperatures (55 degree Fahrenheit or less) will initiate flower bud formation.

- Bring in houseplants that spent the summer outdoors. Before they are brought in, hose down the foliage and clean the containers to remove any insects. It may also be necessary to re-pot.

- Allow amaryllis bulbs to go dormant. The bulbs must rest for at least one month before they are forced back into growth.

- Continue to pot hardy bulbs to be forced into indoor bloom. These bulbs will bloom in early to mid-January.

MG resident praises two Dist. 70 board members

Dear Editor:

I wanted to take this opportunity to thank two school board members, who have decided not to run for re-election this coming November, for their concerned involvement in the education in this district or any other Morton Grove district whose tenure can equal that of Mr. Frank Cordes and Mr. Jack Olander. They can truly say, where school board agenda are concerned, they've been through it all.

The children of these two gentlemen have long since graduated Niles West, yet their involvement with District 70 remained steadfast. I have rarely seen them miss a board meeting in the last two years (although both are equally as busy as an executive board member, who seems to be comfortable missing the last two consecutive board meetings). Their past contributions to District 70 are too numerous to mention here, but their efforts are appreciated by member of the community -- and whether they know it or not at this point in time -- by the students; their realization will come with the materialization of the new wing on Park View.

"Accentuate the Positive" (Park View's motto) was actually practiced by these two men where school board matters were concerned. Unfortunately for us, negativity has had a seat or two on our school board. As for the two years and one year, respectively, served by Mr. Quinn and Mr. Meyer, quoting Thumper in the movie "Bambi", "If you don't have something nice to say about someone, don't say nothin' at all."

League of Women Voters grateful for drop-off recycling

Dear Editor:

We are pleased to see one level of local government picking up the slack when others have chosen to ignore the needs of all citizens.

The Morton Grove/Niles League of Women Voters is grateful to Maine Township officials for the decision to create a drop-off center for our recyclables. Much of the community was disappointed when the Village of Niles closed its recycling center upon institution of a curbside recycling program for single-family residents. The unfortunate closing of the center left multi-family dwellers (nearly a third of the population of Niles) with no means to participate in a recycling program.

should be commended for the decision to give every Niles resident the choice to contribute to a better environment. The center, located at 1700 Ballard Road, Des Plaines, will accept newspapers; green, brown and clear glass; aluminum and metal cans; plastic milk, water and pop containers; and corrugated cardboard boxes, broken down. All containers must be rinsed. Drop off times are 8 a.m. to noon every fourth Saturday of each month, starting Sept. 28.

Letters to the Editor

Mayor urges school boards to avoid property tax caps

The following is a letter Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase has sent to all school board members in District 219, 207, 67, 71, 63 and 64.

It is not my mission in life to pick on school districts. I would, however, be remiss if I did not point out some very obvious facts to you and the members of your board regarding the attitude in Springfield on property taxes.

Residents of our communities are fed up with the constant increase in property taxes, particularly as they are dramatized by periodic increases in assessed evaluation. We know this constant property tax increase will reach a point where there will be a reaction by the political entities, who have control over such things. Primarily, in this incident the State Legislature recently attempted to put a cap on property tax levies in the state, but ended up limiting them to suburban DuPage County and other surrounding counties excluding Cook.

You do not have to be a rocket scientist to see the writing on the wall. That is, unless we make every effort to keep property taxes down it will not be long before property tax mania hits Cook County and the results from Springfield would be very damaging.

It is easier for local cities and village governments to operate because we have available many other sources of revenue than are available to school districts who have the single revenue of property taxes. Realizing this, my comments to you are not critical, but merely cautionary of what you do in the future. I cannot over-emphasize the importance to you and your Board of staying away from property tax caps. If that system is ever implemented, your job and my job as elected public officials will become minimal.

We must be able to show the State Legislature and the residents of our communities that we are making every effort to keep property taxes down. We must explain in detail to our citizenry the necessity of property tax increases. I do not believe many of us have done a good job in this regard. Unfortunately, the bureaucracy of the school system and of local government often takes over and, in many instances, without sensitivity to public concern, pushes us forward into areas that are not totally explained to the residents of our community. We must somehow change this and get the citizens back on our side. That is your job and my job in the days ahead.

Very truly yours,
Nicholas B. Blase
Mayor

Niles All Star Team congratulated for win

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to all the members of the Niles Baseball League 10-year-old All Star Team for taking first place in the Thillens Stadium tournament. Some of the best teams in the Chicagoland area participate in this tournament and it is a great accomplishment being able to win it. The last Niles team to win a Thillens tournament was back in 1982 when the 9-year-old did it. Once again, great job by not only the players but the entire coaching staff.

Sincerely,
John Tekot

B'nai B'rith unit raises $80,000 for Memorial

Close to 150 Holocaust survivors and friends of the Janusz Korczak unit of the B'nai B'rith recently gathered to support the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, which is now under construction on the National Mall in Washington, D.C.

Eddie Osser and Ben Weiss chaired the gathering, which was also a tribute to Dr. Janusz Korczak, whose story of heroism during the Holocaust will be told in the permanent exhibition of the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, when it opens in April of 1993.

Ben Stern, president of the Korczak unit, was in the Warsaw Ghetto and witnessed Janusz Korczak leading the children in his orphanage to the trains that deported them to Treblinka. Korczak was offered his freedom, but instead chose to stay with the children.

Guest speaker Harold Gershowitz, chairman of the Chicago Campaign, said, "The United States Holocaust Memorial Museum is the best guarantee that we have that future generations will remember the Holocaust."

One year ago, the Korczak unit pledged to have its name inscribed on the walls of the museum along with the organizations, congregations and individuals, who are contributing $50,000 or more to the Campaign to Remember. This evening alone raised $80,000 for the museum. Members of the Korczak unit vowed that they will continue to support the museum.

The United States Holocaust Memorial Council was established by Congress in 1980 to plan and build the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, D.C., and to encourage and sponsor observances of an annual, national, civic commemoration of the Holocaust known as the Days of Remembrance.

The Council, which also engages in Holocaust education and research programs, consists of 55 members of all faiths and backgrounds appointed by the president, plus five U.S. senators and five members of the House of Representatives.

The museum is currently under construction on a site overlooking the National Mall and will open to the public in the Spring of 1993.

Niles Nuggets celebrate 10th year

Nugget Fever filled the air on Sunday, July 14 when the Niles Nuggets celebrated their 10th year with an Old Timers game and some delicious Nugget dogs and pop afterwards.

This may seem like old news, but for those who attended it was a day to be remembered. Notre Dame graciously allowed us to use their field for the day for the celebration. Notre Dame was our home field for the first six years and we thank them for the use of the field again on this very special day.

Any boy, who played with the Nuggets in the past 10 years, was invited to come and have a fun game against the current Nugget team. Twenty-one were present. The fun began with everyone renewing friendships and sharing memories. It's funny how the long balls seem to get longer every time the story is told!

Niles Park District Commissioner, Walt Bause, threw out the first ball just as he did ten years ago and has each year since that time.

When it was the Old Timers turn to take the field, they sent all 11 out to play defense! There was some excellent play and a lot of good natured humor. Coach John Gallatz was in attendance. John helped us get the Nugget team off the ground in 1982 and has never left our thoughts.

Lee Breitman, is the only original Nugget still playing with the Nuggets, he loves baseball! Other Nuggets attending from the 1982 team were Bob Kneurr, Nick Busija, Bob Van Kast and Phil Raffin. Coach Breitman took his turn pitching, catching and batting. You never lose it, but the legs just don't do what you want them to!

Jim Prims did some pitching for the Old Timers. Current Nuggets who could also be considered Old Timers were Lee Breitman, Mort Schufreider, Todd Poulos, Mike Starshak, Fred Marcellino, and Jeff Skukala.

'Good Samaritan' steals woman's wallet

A Morton Grove woman, 69, reported she shopped in a grocery store in the 6900 block of Dempster Street, Morton Grove, the morning of Sept. 6 and noticed a young man behind her in the check out line.

After she left the store, the man insisted on helping her with her groceries. She allowed him to help her, although he bumped into her several times while he was doing it. When the man left in a car with a female companion, the woman noticed her wallet was missing.

She lost $25 in cash, miscellaneous credit cards and a driver's license valued at $8.

Thieves target 1991 Blazers

Someone tried to steal a 1991 Blazer parked in the 7500 block of Oak Park Avenue, Niles, Sept. 5, but a dealer-installed kill switch thwarted the theft.

The would-be thief first drilled the lock and then attempted to peel the steering column by the ignition, when the switch activated, making the vehicle unstartable.

In another, possibly related incident involving a 1991 Blazer, a similar vehicle was stolen from the 6600 block of Howard Street, Niles, Sept. 5.

The owner told Niles police this was the second theft of the car in less than a year. The first incident was in Westchester.

Irate driver batters woman

A Morton Grove woman, 21, told police her car was forced to stop on Major Avenue, north of Dempster Street, Morton Grove, by a driver whose car she had mistakenly cut off on Dempster Street a few minutes before.

She said the tall, dark haired thirtyish driver exited his car, reached through her car window, pulled her hair and slapped her face and mouth while he shouted obscenities at her. The man and his female companion then drove off in his red Mitsubishi.

Bike stolen

Someone took a $255 mountain bike from a residence in the 9000 block of Heathwood, in Niles, between Aug. 31 and Sept. 4.

Stolen car recovered

A 1977 Chevrolet Caprice reported stolen in Chicago was found in a parking lot in the 8500 block of Waukegan Road, Morton Grove the night of September 2.

Several cars in a dealer's lot, at 6200 Touhy Ave., were vandalized Sept. 2-4.

Six new model Ford F150 trucks, Tempos and a 1991 Mustang were damaged by person(s) unknown, who used a key to cause $500 damage per vehicle.

Thefts from cars

Someone stole $710 worth of tools from a 1988 Ford van parked in the Golf Mill shopping center south lot Sept. 3, reports said.

A 1991 Ford van was targeted by thieves while in the dealer's lot, at 9401 Milwaukee Ave. A $400 tire and wheel were stolen from the rear of the van.

Angry motorist leaves message on car

Witnesses told Niles police that a 51-year-old Morton Grove woman used a key to scratch a 1986 Ford and then scrawled a message for the owner on the windshield. The Sept. 4 incident occurred in the Omni parking lot, at 7900 Waukegan Road.

"Learn how to park, (expletive)," the note said. "I had a hard time getting into my car on the other side of you." Police contacted the suspect, who admitted leaving the note, but denied that she scratched an X onto the car, causing several hundreds of dollars in damage. A photo was taken of the suspect and will be used in a line-up for witnesses to identify the offender.

In a '91 Honda CRX parked in a lot in the 6800 block of Dempster Street, Morton Grove, persons unknown may have jimmied the car to enter and take a tape and an AM/FM cassette stereo radio valued at $1,000 from the dash.

The night of Sept. 2, unknown offenders caused $250 damage when they broke a side window in a Chicago woman's '88 Ford Tempo parked in the 7300 block of Dempster Street, Morton Grove.

They took the owner's designer purse from the front seat and the owner estimated the theft of the purse and its contents, identification cards, credit cards and cash, as a $320 loss.

Unknown offenders attempting to pry open a rear sliding door damaged the door and its lock in a house in the 9400 block of Harlem Avenue, Morton Grove, between Aug. 30-31. Damage was estimated at $900.

A wooden entry door, its lock and the door jam were damaged in a house in the 7200 block of Lake Street, Morton Grove, when unknown offenders tried to force entry the night of Aug. 31. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Leases signed at MG corporate park

Activity is brisk at Phase III of North Grove Corporate Park, 6200 Park Ave., in Morton Grove.

Michael P. Rose, principal of The Rose Group, has announced five leases recently completed by the firm, bringing the 49,000 square-foot facility to a 75 percent occupancy level.

Honda & Associates, an insurance company, has leased 6,928 sq. ft. to relocate its offices from Chicago. Mas Ishida of Bennett & Kahnweiler represented the tenant. A 5,370 sq. ft. lease was signed by Catering by Michael's, Inc., which was represented by Korman/Lederer. Ownership was represented by Jeffrey M. Wilens.

Nova-Tek, Inc. has leased 2,228 sq. ft. to manufacture and assemble computer hardware parts. Mahalaxmi, Inc., a produce distributor headquartered in Miami, Florida, signed a 2,430 square-foot lease, and Ballantyne Pest Control leased 1,998 sq. ft.

Banks to provide affordable housing loans

Reflecting their ongoing efforts to meet the credit needs of the Des Plaines community, three area banks announced they will make available up to $7.5 million for an Affordable Housing Program targeted for the greater Des Plaines area.

Acting in this community endeavor are First Federal Bank For Savings and First National Bank of Des Plaines, who have each committed $3 million, and PlainesBank of Illinois, who has committed $1.5 million.

First Federal Bank For Savings will accept initial applications for the benefit of the three institutions and applications will be processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

The Des Plaines Affordable

The Rose Group's Wilens represented all parties in these three transactions.

North Grove Phase III is specifically designed to meet the needs of small industrial users, who previously have not had access to new, modern facilities in the near north suburbs. "All units are divisible from 1,700 sq. ft. and have access to two common depressed interior truck docks and grade-level/drive-in doors," said Wilens.

In addition, the proximity to expressways and public transportation along with the park-like environment are attractive to employer and employees alike.

The Rose Group provides real estate and construction services for owners, tenants, buyers, sellers and property managers of industrial and commercial buildings and land. The firm also develops and acquires these properties for its own portfolio and in partnership with other firms, investment groups and individuals.

Realtor one of top fundraisers for MD

ERA Doetsch Realty is ranked one of the top fundraisers in the battle against Muscular Dystrophy and earned participation in the MDA Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

ERA Doetsch Realty recently raised $5,045 through an MDA "Bowl-A-Thon" hosted by Golf Mill Bowl, Niles. This large donation, which exceeds last year's total by more than $1,000 qualified the office to present the check during WGN-TV's participation.

"Much of the credit is due to the efforts of Walter Hartlieb, realtor for ERA Doetsch, for personally raising over $2,000 this year for MDA," said Matthey Doetsch, broker/owner. Other top fundraisers that participated include James Torsen, Edward Bechtold, Bruce Messinger and Jan Doetsch.

The program will be limited to the $7.5 million allocated, but will automatically end by Dec. 31, 1991.

Take the bite out of taxes

by Jeffrey Cardella
Edward D. Jones & Co.

This quarter's tax deadline is right around the corner, and although taxes may be the last thing you want to think about, now is the time to determine your tax strategy for the upcoming year.

There are many tax-free investments available, one of which is probably suited to your individual financial needs. Tax-free investments offer income that is usually free from federal income taxes. In some cases, the income is free from state and local taxes as well.

To properly appreciate what tax-free income can do for you, it's important to examine after-tax return. For instance, $10,000 invested in a municipal bond yielding 7 percent pay $700 interest each year. Since you own no taxes on this return, the true, after-tax return is $700.

Ten thousand invested in a taxable bond paying 9 percent, or $900 each year, only leaves about $648 in an after-tax return. These figures are assuming your tax bracket is 28 percent.

Some common tax-free investments are municipal bonds, unit trusts, and tax-free mutual funds. When you invest in municipal bonds, you loan money to help finance and support public projects and services. In return for this loan, you earn a specific rate of interest which is usually exempt from federal taxes.

With a unit trust, your money is diversified among 10 to 30 municipal bonds and is monitored by a professional. Unit trusts may be set up to pay a monthly check, to help pay the bills. Many unit trusts are also insured as to the timely payment of principal and interest.

When you invest in tax-free mutual funds, your money is pooled with money of thousands of investors and is invested in 10 to 100 municipal bonds. These bonds are then professionally managed and pay a return that is free from federal taxes.

If you think tax-free income may be of use to you, consult a professional on the features and benefits of tax-free products. By planning your strategy now, chances are that you'll find a tax-free investment that will help ease the headache of paying taxes next year.

The new show will put local students to use the television high school sporting events on the big screen and give the students the chance to produce and commentate a live television show. Estate worth an estimated $100 million

Cuneo Museum, gardens are rich in history

If you're looking for a fun, yet educational way to spend a day, take in a little north suburban history at the Cuneo Museum and Gardens.

Located on Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Hills, the 32-room Cuneo Mansion sits on the sprawling estate of John F. Cuneo Sr., the multi-millionaire who owned and operated Hawthorn-Melody Farm, an egg and dairy farm, which closed after Cuneo's death in 1977.

Estimated to be worth more than $100 million, the Hawthorn Farms estate was built in 1914 by financier Samuel Insull, the first chairman of Commonwealth Edison Co., and took four years to complete. The start of the Depression forced Insull to sell the estate, which Cuneo purchased in 1937.

In his will, Cuneo provided the estate be turned into a museum upon the death of his wife, Julia Shepherd Cuneo. Last July, Mrs. Cuneo died at age 88. This summer, for the first time, the mansion and its surrounding gardens were opened up to the public.

The 75-acre estate includes a deer-petting park and formal gardens. On display in the mansion are the exquisite furnishings and art Cuneo spent his lifetime collecting from around the world, including a collection of Belgian tapestries, Italian Renaissance paintings, and Oriental rugs.

Cuneo, the grandson of an Italian immigrant who earned his fortune in the produce business, attended Yale University but left to found a printing empire in Chicago in 1907, which included Cuneo Press, with a $10,000 loan from his father. He started Hawthorn-Melody in 1939.

The Cuneo Museum and Gardens is funded by the Niles-based Cuneo Foundation, and will be available for fundraisers and private parties.

The mansion is open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. Admission for adults is $7 for the mansion and $4 for the grounds, or $11 for both. The estate is located on the west side of Milwaukee Avenue, less than a mile north of Illinois Highway 60 in Vernon Hills.

Baroque chamber music performed

Celloist featured in concert

The Music Center of the North Shore and Northern Trust Bank of Winnetka present the concert series Sundays at Seven at 7 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 15, in the Concert Room at The Music Center, 300 Green Bay Road Winnetka.

John Rozendaal, cello, will play baroque chamber music performed on period instruments, including Sonata in G for Viola da Gamba and Cembalo by J.S. Bach. Rozendaal is joined by violinist Cynthia Koppleman.

In recent years, Rozendaal has made a specialty of Baroque cello and viola da gamba and has performed frequently as a soloist on both instruments. He has appeared with Early Music from the Newberry Library, The City Musik and the Rockefeller Chapel Choir, the Harwood Ensemble and in live concerts on WPMT.

Rozendaal is a member of the faculty at The Music Center of the North Shore.

Cynthia Koppleman has appeared with period-instrument ensembles throughout California and the Mid-West. Her performances have spanned Renaissance through Classical music. She is currently on the faculty of Roosevelt University, Chicago Musical College and the Merit Music Program.

Pictured above is one of the double formal dining rooms at the Cuneo Museum, located in Vernon Hills. The room can seat up to 40 people. The mansion is open to the public Tuesday through Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

time, closer to the expiration of the present contract, they could stipulate ground rules for attempting to settle matters pertinent to each area of disagreement.

The teachers' union would not want to take away their most formidable weapon, their ability to call a strike. And the school board would have to show an openness toward the teachers, which would eliminate stonewalling.

District 63 now has a graphic history of controversies, three of which have resulted in strikes. In the 1990's a new element has been added to the conflict, which must be considered. No longer can the parents and taxpayers be ignored. Because more than half of American families now have two parents in the workforce, it has to be accepted these families rely on their children being in school during the two full semesters. Forcing their children to remain at home during these school strikes puts an enormous burden on the two-parent-working families. Lining up sitters and surrogate parents is a dislodgement, which is a new player in these negotiations.

Setting up a serious schedule for negotiations long before the contract deadline seems reasonable. And then seriously studying neighboring school districts salary schedules and benefits should create an avenue for firm negotiating.

Somehow, we have the impression the present process is a bit of a charade. The teachers must stand tough. The school board must react equally firm to show it won't be pushed around. And in the end they reach an agreement that can be predicted, based on what neighboring school districts have previously settled.

The teachers walk away from the conflict saying they got less than what they expected. The school board contends they represented their constituents to the best of their ability. And the children...exactly what benefit did they derive from the two-week charade/ confrontation?

Miss Illinois...

Sept. 13, marching bands will accompany the state's beauty representatives in a parade along Atlantic City's famed Boardwalk, Carole Majerick said.

In the talent segment, Cheryl will sing "O Mio Babbino Caro" (Oh, My Dear Father), from "Gianni Schicchi" by Giacomo Puccini. The aria was part of her winning performance in the June Miss Illinois contest in Elgin.

Though Cheryl favored Broadway show tunes when she began singing lessons at age 11, she turned to classical scores by age 13 and sang with the Lyric Opera's Children's Chorus, her mother said. The talent competition accounts for 40 percent of a contestant's score.

Cheryl has a master's degree in opera performance from the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, Pa., and has studied voice in Italy. If she wins the Miss America crown, she will use the $35,000 scholarship money to further her music education, her mother said.

The beauty contestant's physical fitness is determined in the bathing suit competition; their poise when they appear in evening gowns. Each category contributes 15 percent to their overall score.

In preparation for the physical fitness contest, Cheryl, who normally wears a size two dress, trained with Evanston fitness instructor Cynthia Barker. Cheryl has been a vegetarian for ten years.

In her personal interview with the Pageant's Board of Judges, which adds 30 percent to her score, Cheryl will emphasize her desire to help those afflicted with AIDS. Mrs. Majerick noted a friend of Cheryl's died of the disease when Cheryl was studying in Philadelphia. That loss has motivated her to volunteer at Chicago House, a local facility for AIDS sufferers and to promote education about AIDS as part of her program if she is chosen Miss America.

Skokie welcomes newcomers Sept. 12

The Skokie Human Relations Commission will offer a warm welcome to newcomers when it holds its tenth annual New Residents Coffee on Thursday, Sept. 12. The event begins at 7:30 p.m. in Skokie Village Hall, 5127 Oakton Street.

The event is for residents who have moved into the Village within the past year. Approximately 150 new residents were in attendance at last year's coffee to meet and hear from Village officials, tour Village Hall and enjoy refreshments and conversation with newfound friends and neighbors. Guests can register to vote from 7 to 7:30 p.m.

A brief program on Village services will again be offered this year, followed by an information fair. Mayor Jacqueline Gorell and Village Board members will be on hand to talk informally with new residents. Staff members at the information fair will explain what services their departments offer.

Invitations were sent out earlier this month for the coffee. If you did not receive one but moved into the Village within the last year, and would like to attend, please reserve a spot by calling Leslie Gooris at 673-0500, ext. 257.

Strike settled...

Increasingly, the board has borrowed from the working cash fund to handle its shortfalls, losing interest from those reserves in the process.

Citing richer neighboring school districts and increases in their own cost of living, teachers had hoped for much more. District taxpayers and parents, some of whom are pensioners or have experienced layoffs and pay cuts, complain the teachers got much more than they should have, given the financial circumstances of their district.

Ironically, teachers' own colleagues may be hurt the most by the actions in the last four weeks, either by virtue of strike rhetoric or if the settlement itself begins bankrupting the district's funds and causes layoffs or cutbacks.

"Schools are a very labor-intensive enterprise - about three quarters of their budget (for personnel costs)," Lifton said, indicating that the new contract will worsen 63's financial woes.

"When the borrowing from the working cash fund reaches a certain point, the district is going to have to take some reductions," Lifton warned. "Reducing labor costs increases class sizes. Cutting back on programs causes layoffs (of special program teachers). It could, in the long haul, mean reduced personnel."

Fueled by reports that the district intended to bring in substitutes so that students could return to school Sept. 10, last week teachers countered with a leaflet, which implied subs were not "real teachers" capable of giving "a quality education." The leaflet advised residents to call school board members and included their home phone numbers.

"Most of those teachers got their start in this district as substitutes," an angry Gemini Jr. High parent commented. "What kind of thing is that to say about your own colleagues?"

Superintendent Eldon Gleichman insists there was never any serious thought given to bringing in substitutes while Chikulas is equally certain that the board had begun the process of enlisting substitutes.

"When you have a strike, things get more intense," Gleichman said just before going into the final 15-hour marathon negotiating session Sept. 7. "A board's responsibility is to have the kids in school, but calling in substitutes has not been an option that we discussed," he said.

"We were told prior to the onset. We asked them (the school board) point blank and they said 'no, not the first week.' Chikulas said in support of the teachers' information that preparations were underway to break the strike in just that way. "We had been in contact (with sources) in the area that we knew (were aware of the district's recruitment of substitutes)."

"What's come out of this is one unit instead of six faculties," said Elaine Lampros, president of the East Maine Education Association. "What they don't realize is a strike does not divide a union, it makes a more cohesive unit."

"The board feels quite keenly this is a lose-lose for them," Lifton said. "They do have a fiduciary responsibility to the taxpayers. The prevailing feeling is that schools are not spending as effectively as they might. More money doesn't produce better quality education."

"I would recommend win-win in one-and-a-half years," Chikulas said, referring to 1993, when the new contract expires. The teachers' attorney explained that during a win-win form of negotiation, trained neutrals are brought in for each side and there are intense negotiations, which culminate in a contract in about four weeks.

"It's fair and it's reasonable for most everybody," said Tina Kalidimos, a Nelson School art teacher, who voted on this current contract Sunday. "I'm just glad it's over."

house; it's going to look terrible!" Debbie Kubica, 8109 Osceola, asked board members to "stop builders from crowding houses," and maintain space between houses.

Robert McDonald, 8109 Oketo, noted a young couple had bought the house adjacent to the lots in question. He said "If the village wants young people to move to Niles, no one would want a house built this close to theirs."

Rich Blasco, of 8118 Odell, blamed greed for the sale of the small lot. Barbara Blasco of the same address added her sympathy for the new owners in the adjacent house. She said "If they want to add on, how'll it look?"

Commissioner Troiani exclaimed "You're asking us to give them a park!" He emphasized the property was a legal lot of record and by law the builder had the right to build on it. Geroge Leddy, 7320 Keeney, argues "I say change the law; deny it!"

The new homeowner adjacent to the lot, Tom Gardner, said the reason he moved to Niles was because of the room, but conceded he knew the adjacent lot was for sale. He questioned whether he could put up a ladder next to his house if the new construction had only a two-foot side yard.

Testifying for the builder, urban planning consultant Joseph Abel, of Glen Ellyn, maintained plans of survey in the area indicated there were many buildings on 30-foot lots and concluded the new constructions would not have an adverse effect on the adjoining properties.

In other matters, the board allowed the Des Plaines owner of Joy Foods, 9186 Golf Road, a zoning change from R-1 P.U.D. to R-1 P.U.D. Special Use for the purpose of selling videos in three languages, if the owner conforms with Niles regulations against lending X-rated videos.

In another petition, the board members studied a request from a homeowner, at 8535 Bruce Drive, for a variation of the required rear yard from 40 feet to 34 feet; of required separation of an accessory structure 10 feet to nine feet; and a nine percent increase in the use of a rear yard to build a room addition and deck.

Commissioner Troiani noted the Fire Department would have to grant the variations. When a neighbor, at 8529 Bruce Drive, told of concern the new construction could send additional water onto his flood-prone property, Troiani suggested Niles Engineers evaluate the site's west side drainage after the constructoin and consider putting drain tile to the street on that side.

The board continued a request for zoning changes in order to open a 40-seat restaurant, at 7742 Milwaukee Ave., to the October meeting because the petitioner did not present an architectural rendering of the proposed eatery.

cashed checks at the location after leaving his assistant at John Crane Company on Oakton Street, in Morton Grove. After picking up his assistant, the men noticed manila envelopes stuffed with newspaper, in the part of the truck where the missing cash was. $1000,000 was left undisturbed.

"It happened around the noon hour," said investigator Karl Scheel. We know there were dozens of individuals who might have seen something or someone.

The company hopes someone will come forward now that there is a reward.

Heart Disease Reversal Award presented

Jane Ridgeway, a patient in Cardiac Rehabilitation program at Swedish Covenant Hospital, 5145 N. California Ave., recently was named the recipient of this year's Peter F. McCann Memorial Heart Disease Reversal Award. She was chosen for this honor because, as mentioned at the award presentation, of her great enthusiasm for the lifestyle changes required for cardiac rehabilitation and the inspiring example she sets for her peers.

The award recipient, an attractive 58-year-old grandmother, not only has suffered a heart attack and had bypass and carotid artery surgery, but in 1987 underwent a heart transplant. Today she is an active member of SCH's Cardiac Rehab program and Coronary Heart Disease Reversal program which helps her consent to diet, stress reduction, exercise and medical management of her cholesterol.

"At first, adopting a heart healthy lifestyle wasn't that easy," she confessed, "When I suffered my first heart attack in 1980, I continued to smoke two packs of cigarettes a day and I dropped out of Swedish Covenant Hospital's Cardiac Rehab program."

"It wasn't until 1985, when I was experiencing pain in my shoulder that resulted in my having angioplasty and later bypass surgery, that I became concerned and decided to take responsibility for my lifestyle."

The award was presented during a dinner held at the Westin Hotel O'Hare sponsored by the Chicago Center for Clinical Research, the Preventive Medicine Center and Bristol Myers Squibb. Forty-one participants from cardiac rehab programs throughout the Chicagoland area were nominated.

"Since her heart transplant," said Dr. James W. Lindsay, who presented Jane the McCann award, "she has exhibited great enthusiasm for the lifestyle changes for which cardiac rehabilitation stands. She is an extremely motivated patient, and in a group of 30 plus heart transplant alumni from the hospital where Jane had her surgery, she is the only one who is a Phase III cardiac rehab program."

In his closing remarks, Dr. Lindsay highlighted other of Jane's attributes. "She never misses an opportunity to tell her story if it will impact on another's behavioral changes. She has a positive medical setback and she continues to amaze and inspire patients and staff alike."

YOUR PARENTS AND YOU

One of our most popular residents' name is Freckles

If Freckles could sign autographs, she would have writer's cramp. A member of the Recreation Services Department at Ballard, she loves every one of the men and women who live here. She is also one of the most popular residents at Ballard—and one of its most social—managing to visit everyone at Ballard almost every day. They love her for what one resident calls her "socio personality." Freckles loves snacks and used to have quite a weight problem, but now she eats sensibly and is quite trim.

As you may have guessed, Freckles is a dog, a three-year old, who claims distinct Collier ancestry but has no papers to prove it. She loves to be petted, talked to and made over. She likes to join family members when they come to Ballard for a visit—but we have to plead with the visitors not to give Freckles any tasty morsels. Which gets back to Freckles' weight problem. She was happily eating snacks offered by residents and their guests—and getting an unseemly tummy. Then the Recreation Services Department passed the word. Freckles now gets very few illicit treats and her figure has returned. Freckles finds Ballard a nice place to be. And all of us at Ballard think she helps make Ballard a nice place to live. So next time you come to visit, ask to see Freckles, but please don't bring any snacks.

America's oldest person nears 114th birthday

At 113, Ettie Mae Greene, of Lindsie, W. Va., America's oldest person, has earned the right to do things her own way.

Like sleeping. Greene usually sleeps for about three days and is awake for three.

Marianne Blakeslee, director of nursing at the Springfield Comprehensive Care Center, said Greene talks steadily before she tires herself out. Nurses feed her three meals a day as she dozes, Blakeslee said.

A former farmer and seamstress, Greene said a daily milkshake, a vitamin and "good, clean living" are the keys to her long life.

"It's been a pretty good life I guess," she said. "I'm so tired I can hardly stand it."

She has outlived five of her nine children and has been a widow for 72 years. She has 21 grandchildren, 47 great-grandchildren and 37 great-great-grandchildren.

The Guinness Book of Records lists her as the world's third-oldest person, behind a 117-year-old in France and a woman in England who is a month older than Greene.

Family and nurses, who call her "Grandmother," will celebrate her 114th birthday Sept. 8 at the nursing home where she's lived for three years.

It's an age she thinks is "quite much."

She recently greeted visitors to her room with outstretched arms and a spritely "Howdy."

Her snowy hair was twisted back with purple combs and a silky ribbon. She weighs about 95 pounds.

She loves having her photograph taken. At the click of a camera, she says, "C-H-double-E-S-E."

Professor pushes music therapy for elderly

It was the foot-stomping, hand-clapping music that put this U.S. Senate committee hearing in a class by itself, according to a music therapy professor from Nazareth College, in New York.

"The people in that Senate chamber were up on their feet and really in the spirit of things," said Professor Bryan Hunter.

Other witnesses who testified in August with Hunter about the healing power of music included Grateful Dead drummer Mickey Hart, Broadway performer Theodore Bikel, physician and author Oliver Sacks, and Ida Goldman, a 90-year-old nursing-home resident who said music helps her forget her pain and enjoy life again.

Now the National Association for Music Therapy Inc. wants recognition for music therapy as treatment for certain conditions affecting the elderly.

That musical Senate hearing had two goals, Hunter said: creating a record about the value of music therapy for elderly people, for future legislation and regulation; and seeking money for more research.

The value of music therapy is clear, Hunter said, describing recent studies that show people with Alzheimer's disease responding to music when nothing else seems to break through the mental fog. It can also help ease the trauma of grieving and lessen "Grandmother always says 'living a clean life' is what made her live so long," said granddaughter Rita Dillon Barker, 50, of Wayside. "She never smoked or drank and she worked hard on the farm."

"When you ask her something, it's not just 'yes' or 'no.' She always makes a complete sentence," Blakeslee said.

"Every response is unique. When you ask her if she's hungry, she says, 'I'm hungry as a bear,'" Blakeslee said. "She's like a coon, but she eats every bite."

"She has a real sweet disposition and an ability to remember everything," said Elizabeth French, Greene's day nurse. "I would not be here if she wasn't here. I really feel better after I have come here to work with her. It's a privilege."

Greene occasionally sings the hymns "Amazing Grace" and "At the Cross" and recites the 23rd Psalm. "The Bible is her favorite book," Barker said.

Greene grew up as Ettie Mae Thomas and lived in the towns of Wayside, Greenville and Peters-town. Her uncles fought in the Civil War.

She was raised amid wild turkeys and chickens, home-canned raspberries and homemade apple butter. Her mother taught her to quilt and use a spinning wheel.

Greene thinks the telephone is the greatest invention. Barker said voting was important to her grandmother.

"She was near 100 when she last voted," Barker said.

Greene's daughter Ada Dillon, 81, recalled her mother climbing trees to pick cherries and peaches while in her 80s and 90s.

"Mother said, 'What do you think I'd get done if I rested?'" Dillon said.

Leaning Tower plans senior activities

Fall activities are in full swing at Leaning Tower Senior Adult Center, 6300 W. Touhy Ave., Niles.

The Senior Center, under the able direction of Lois Dickert, is open to seniors 60 years and older and not just to seniors living in Niles. Members from the north side of Chicago, and most of the northern suburbs belong to Leaning Tower Senior Adult Center.

The most popular activities, of course, are swimming and the exercise class. Seniors may swim from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. four days per week. The special senior exercise class meets three days per week. There are three different dancing groups: Line Dancing, Ballroom Dancing and Square Dancing. There is a bowling league, parties, trips and special events.

Another well-attended activity is the Duplicate Bridge Group. There are bridge lessons, pinocle classes, and the center has its own chorus, The Tower Tones, who meet for rehearsals on Wednesday mornings at 10:30 a.m.

On a more serious note, there is an Outreach Program of Friendly Visitors, who visit about 200 elderly in nursing homes and about 50 isolated seniors in their own homes. There is a Tutoring Program in which seniors bridge the generation gap by tutoring a group of underprivileged youngsters on a one-to-one basis.

Come in to the Leaning Tower Senior Center for more information or call the center at 647-8222, ext. 2237.

Seniors take tour on gambling boat

The seniors of Leaning Tower YMCA recently took an overnight trip to Dubuque, Iowa, to enjoy the Casino Belle and Gale-na, Illinois. This very active group enjoyed great weather, good food, a wonderful motel and pool and the charm of Galena.

Bethany Terrace gets new director

Mary Lewis joined the staff at Bethany Terrace Nursing Centre, 8424 N. Waukegan Road, Morton Grove, last month.

Lewis brings over 20 years experience to her position as director of the Alzheimer's Care Center. She received her training as a registered nurse at Presbyterian St. Luke's School of Nursing, and later acquired a bachelor's degree in nursing from the University of Illinois.

For the past 3 1/2 years, Lewis has worked with Alzheimer's patients and their families. She also has experience with educating others as she taught nursing classes at Illinois Masonic School of Nursing and Chicago City-Wide College.

Currently, the Terrace has two units where specialized care is provided for persons with Alzheimer's Disease. Plans for renovation and expansion are underway for the addition of a third Alzheimer's unit.

As director for the units, Lewis will oversee the program, which is designed to provide a stress-free environment that encourages patients to maximize their abilities. Lewis will oversee patient care, specialized activities, and she will also provide educational training to staff.

All new jobs bring new challenges, and Lewis said that she is excited about her new position with the Terrace. She stated, "I'm very pleased to be associated with a facility which has such a dynamic program."

Adult Day Care Week observed

The Council for Jewish Elderly will join the adult day care providers throughout Illinois in observing National Adult Day Care Week, Sept. 16-20.

Adult Day Care Week honors the dedicated service of professionals, who provide high quality, cost-effective care to participants in adult day care centers.

Council for Jewish Elderly's Adult Day Care Center, located at 1015 Howard St., Evanston, is an innovative and unique program that encompasses two components under one roof: the Award-Winning Adult Day Care Program, and the Helen and Norman Asher Alzheimer's Care Program.

Both programs provide a protected setting that is sensitive to the participants' individual needs and capacities, and gives friends and family of the participant relief from the responsibilities of caregiver for the day. The Adult Day Care Program has physical activities, programs with outside specialists and speakers, and cultural activities and excursions.

The Asher Alzheimer's Care Program is separate both physically and programmatically from the Adult Day Care Program. The environment is low-keyed and all activities are geared to participants' abilities so that they will experience success.

Activities at CJE's program during Day Care Week, include visiting the Shedd Aquarium to talk about the Oceanarium, a visit to the National Sports Museum, Yiddish bingo, an arm-chair travel series, an opera program, and a presentation, "Those Were the Days in Hollywood". Programs in the Asher Alzheimer's Care Program include current events, music and movement, classical hour, bingo and cooking.

"The availability of adult day care can make a positive difference in the lives of disabled adults and their continued ability to live at home," Hedy Ciocci, supervisor of CJE's Adult Day Care Center explained.

Adult day care is not just a cost-effective program but a positive philosophy of how to assist the older individual.

Tooth loss is not an inevitable part of aging

Are you over 55? Do you still have most or all of your natural teeth? Would you like to keep it that way? It can be done—your teeth are meant to last all your life—but many people believe the dental myth that tooth loss is an inevitable fact of aging. They couldn't be more wrong.

Tooth loss is caused by injury or dental diseases—most commonly tooth decay or periodontal diseases. In fact, periodontal disease, which attack the gums and underlying jaw bones that anchor the teeth in place, account for over 70 percent of tooth loss in the United States.

These diseases affect three out of four adults—the majority of them senior citizens.

While highly prevalent, periodontal diseases and tooth decay are also highly preventable—with a simple three step oral hygiene plan:

1. Thorough daily flossing and brushing with a fluoride toothpaste to remove plaque. Plaque is the sticky film of bacteria that clings to teeth, creating acids that cause decay and toxins that irritate the gums.

2. Nutritious eating habits that limit between-meal snacks and provide a balance of proteins, fats, carbohydrates and necessary vitamins and minerals.

3. Regular dental visits for professional cleanings and checkups. Like all health problems, the earlier dental diseases are diagnosed, the less extensive and expensive treatment is likely to be.

Aging does trigger some special dental problems, and anyone over 55 should be aware of these. Plaque tends to build up more quickly and in greater amounts on older teeth.

This increases susceptibility to periodontal diseases and tooth decay—particularly root caries.

If gums have receded, a common condition among seniors, the tooth root is exposed. Tooth roots are not protected by enamel, so they are softer and more likely to decay rapidly.

Older adults also are prone to decay around the edges of fillings. Since today's seniors grew up without the benefits of enamel-hardening fluorides in drinking water and dental products, many have a substantial number of restorations which must be inspected regularly for signs of deterioration.

Senior citizens are more likely to take medications, particularly drugs to control blood pressure and diabetes too. These medications may cause a condition known as xerostomia, or dry mouth—a great reduction in the supply of saliva.

Without sufficient saliva to wash away food particles, neutralize acids produced by plaque and lubricate the mouth, tooth decay progresses rapidly. Artificial saliva and fluoride mouthwashes may be recommended for patients suffering from xerostomia.

Other health conditions, such as cardiac and circulatory problems, are prevalent among the senior audience and can affect oral health.

Thus it is crucial that your dentist be aware of any health conditions you have and the medications you are taking. Frequent updates of your medical history help ensure you receive informed diagnosis and care.

But what if you are over 55 and no longer have your natural teeth? Another myth that seriously concerns dental professionals is "the denture myth."

Many denture wearers believe that they needn't see the dentist once their plates are fitted. Once again, they couldn't be more wrong.

It is crucial to establish a schedule of regular dental visits. Your mouth is a living organism which is consistently changing.

Dentures that fit well at first may need adjusting as the shape of your jaws and gums alters.

Only a dentist can determine what adjustments are required. And only your dentist should repair your dentures should they be broken or damaged.

Yet, only about 35 percent of people over age 65 see their dentists in a given year. Dental professionals fear that older patients are tolerating ill-fitting, uncomfortable dentures that click and cause mouth sores, assuming the problems are simply a matter of growing older and cannot be remedied.

The problems can and should be remedied. Oral health problems can trigger serious overall health conditions. For example, many patients alter their diets when it hurts to chew certain foods. This may compromise nutrition and create more health concerns.

During regular visits, your dentist can inspect for properly fitting dentures and a healthy condition of your mouth, gums and jaws. He or she can also screen for oral cancer—cancer of the lips, tongue, floor or roof of the mouth and pharynx.

This year, 30,200 people will learn they have oral cancer, and about 30 percent of those diagnosed will die of the disease within five years, according to American Cancer Society statistics.

While use of any tobacco products, including smokeless tobacco, is the major culprit causing oral cancers, most experts agree that the risks also increase with age.

Warnings signs of oral cancer are:

- Lesions, swelling or lumps in the mouth or tongue;
- Numbness, burning, pain or repeated bleeding in the mouth without apparent cause;
- Persistent sore that will not heal;
- Difficulty speaking or swallowing.

If you notice any of these, see your dentist immediately.

Township helps meet seniors' needs

Maine Township has one of the largest senior citizen populations in Cook County, numbering about 20,000. A wide variety of services and programs are available to senior citizens through the Maine Township government.

One of the key programs offered by Maine Township is an information and referral clearinghouse to help senior citizens and their families obtain information on housing, medical services, social and mental health services, nutrition, home-delivered meals, employment, energy assistance, social activities and a variety of other services.

You can reach the information and referral service by calling Lisa Krusinski at the Maine Township Town Hall, 297-2510, ext. 232.

This program is partially supported through grants awarded to Maine Township by the Suburban Cook County Area Agency on Aging. To date, the township has received nine awards from the Suburban and referral services.

Krusinski is also available to help seniors with Medicare forms and insurance questions. She has been certified by the Illinois Department of Insurance Senior Health Insurance Program (SHIP) to provide this service.

Senior citizens can also find fun and companionship through the many activities offered by the Maine Township Seniors, a social group sponsored by the township.

More than 3,500 township seniors belong to the group. Activities in most cases are limited to members. Applicants must be 65 or older and provide proof of residency.

The township also sponsors Options 55, a social program for pre-retirement adults, aged 55 through 65. Trips, theater programs and special events are scheduled evenings and weekends for the convenience of members.

Maine Township recently started a third group, One Plus Options, for widowed and single adults, ages 45 through 65. Members can take advantage of free seminars on issues of common interest, a Sunday Strollers group, a Cuisine Club, volunteer opportunities, and trips co-sponsored by Options 55. Membership in all three groups is free.

Maine Township also provides RTA special users passes and handicapped parking cards through the Clerk's office and participates in the Paratransit Resource Center (PRC) to provide transportation at special rates to seniors who are unable to use public transportation.

For information and membership applications call Sue Neuschel, 297-2510, ext. 240.

Nurse promoted at Glenview Terrace

Mary Odishoo, R.N., has been a dedicated employee for over ten years at Glenview Terrace Nursing Center, Glenview. In the early years she began as a staff nurse. Then, she moved up to the position of a charge nurse and now, Mary is proud to have been promoted to Assistant Director of Nursing.

Since 1982, Mary has been a part of the dynamic nursing team at Glenview Terrace.

As Mary steps up to her new position, she will be expanding her role to include new and broader responsibilities. Nonetheless, Mary tells us that her number-one priority is patient care. "It always has been and it always will be." In addition, Mary will have more involvement with the residents' families.

Mary's responsibilities don't stop there, as she is actively involved with the nurses' aides and the R.N.s at Glenview Terrace. Both Mary and Marianna Pillai, Director of Nursing, supervise a staff of over 100 employees.

Helping the elderly has always held a special place in Mary's heart, especially at Glenview Terrace.

Health of elderly women under study

Researchers hope a study conducted by The Johns Hopkins University will help doctors design strategies to prevent and treat disabilities in older women.

Researchers are particularly interested in discovering how women are affected by a combination of conditions, such as stroke, heart disease, diabetes, cancer and arthritis.

"I think this is a very important and very exciting study because there is a great need to determine what an effective, preventive health care strategy should be for older adults," said Dr. Linda Fried, an assistant professor of medicine and epidemiology at Johns Hopkins, who will direct the research.

The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine was awarded a $7.9 million contract by the National Institute on Aging last month to conduct the study over seven and a half years.

By preventing disabilities, federal officials hope to tame health care costs for older Americans, which have skyrocketed.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services said the cost of treating older people suffering disabilities is currently $65 billion. The cost could rise to $100 billion annually within 40 years if the rate of disability is not reduced, said Vicky Cahan, a department spokeswoman.

Researchers have studied the disabilities produced by a specific disease, such as stroke or heart disease, but little is known about the impact of multiple diseases, said Dr. Jack Guralnik, director of the Epidemiology, Demography and Biometry Program at the National Institute on Aging.

"We can learn from this study where the burden of disability comes from in terms of those diseases that cause disability," Guralnik said Wednesday.

Ms. Fried said 1,000 women with physical disabilities caused by diseases such as cancer, diabetes, heart disease, stroke will be recruited to participate.

"There is a lot of medical research that looks at a population that is free of disease and then looks at how they are affected by the onset of that disease. There has been much less work on older people and populations in general who already have diseases and how those diseases have affected them," said Guralnik.

Members of the study group will be evaluated in their homes every six months for three years to record changes in physical function.

"Our hope is that we will understand which changes in themselves, either disease changes or changes associated with aging, are responsible for physical disability and whether there is a threshold of severity beyond which they do cause disability. That is important because we could design treatments directed at the severity of the disease," Ms. Fried said.

The study focuses on older women because they have higher rates of disability and more loss of independence than do men, Guralnik said.

Women are more vulnerable to their loss of independence because more women outlive their spouses and may have no one to care for them.

According to last available population projections from the U.S. Census Bureau, 12.6 percent of the population - about 31.2 million people - were over the age of 65 as of 1990.

In 50 years, nearly 22 percent of the population, or 67 million people - are expected to be in that age group, according to the statistics.

About 22 percent of women aged 65 and older suffer disabilities that require them to live in a nursing home or receive special assistance if they live at home, according to Ms. Cahan.

Bail bondswoman going strong at 81

Minnie McMains sees no reason to stop working as a bail bond agent serving several California counties just because she's turning 81 this month.

"It's a rugged life for a little old lady, but it keeps the wolf from the door," she says.

She operates the business with her 48-year-old daughter, Nikki Smith, from their home in rural Gridley, 60 miles north of Sacramento.

Her late husband, Vernon, opened the business in 1961 "as something to do in his retirement" and encouraged her and their daughter to get bail bond licenses so they could help.

Since he died six years ago, Mrs. McMains has continued the 24-hour-a-day business serving five rural counties on shifts with her daughter, with the help of a cellular telephone.

"We like to think all of our customers are innocent until proven guilty, but ... you have to have very good instincts or you can quickly go out of business," if clients jump bail, she said.

Respite care means quality vacation time

Residents of Regency Nursing Centre enjoy Buckingham Fountain during a sightseeing trip to Chicago's lakefront.

While Labor Day holiday and the start of school traditionally mean the end of summer and vacation time, there are many families, who are just packing and hitting the highways of America to sightsee and view the changing fall colors. For families with an elderly loved one who are just embarking on a trip, and those vacationing families of summer, Regency Nursing Centre, 6631 Milwaukee Ave., Niles, plays a major role.

Throughout the year Regency offers Respite Care, a program where families are able to bring their elderly relative to enjoy a comfortable stay at Regency while the family goes away. While staying with us, the family member enjoys a vacation of their own among peers. The days are filled with many activities, outings and great meals.

A Respite Care vacation offers something even more for the elderly resident, according to Regency Administrator Barbara Hecht. "While the resident is here, he will be seeing people all day long and will be included in all of the various programs and activities."

There are several elderly area residents, who have become regular respite visitors at Regency and return every summer or every fall when their own families pack up for a trip. In a few specialized cases, Regency has become such a part of the family and its vacation plans that the nursing home has even helped with arrangements for boarding the family pet.

The minimum stay requirement for Respite Care is one week and the maximum stay is four weeks.

The familiarity of taking a mini vacation at Regency has another advantage, according to Hecht. "When the time comes where a person is in need of long-term nursing care, the person who has previously stayed at Regency is very comfortable to come back here on a long-term basis. They know and like the home because it is familiar to them and the transition is an easy one for both the family and the resident."

Respite Care can also be a reasonable introduction to a family and their loved one who are considering long-term care, but are unsure that their loved one is ready for such a change. Respite Care can serve as a trial period for both parties involved.

For families who are caregivers to an Alzheimer relative, respite care can be an alternative for the caregiver to rest and recharge their batteries. There are many Alzheimer residents, who come to Regency for respite care while their families vacation, or while they do major home repairs and remodeling that would be disturbing to their loved one with Alzheimer's disease.

Respite care can be the answer to the dilemma of who will care for an elderly relative who can't go on a particular trip. The situation can be easily turned around. In fact, it isn't surprising to hear a respite resident say, "My family went hiking in the Grand Canyon and I vacationed at Regency."

Pam Seefurth recently became the new administrator at the Goldman Home. Seefurth brings to the Home a wide range of long-term care experience.

Her first job in Long-Term Care was as a bookkeeping assistant in 1965 and 1966. At that time it was only part-time work to assist her mother, who was the full charge bookkeeper at the Bethesda Home in Chicago. She returned in September 1968 when her mother became ill where she chose to remain.

Her career has had some twists and turns since her accounting days. She had the responsibility of full charge bookkeeper, Assistant Administrator and Adminis-

Older population creates new jobs

The graying of America has changed more than our appearance. Its rippling effects have produced special products for mature consumers, new TV shows for older viewers, and, since the 1980's, has encouraged advertisers to lure an affluent older market to cruises and other luxury items.

Changing spending habits, combined with the population over 65 growing at a faster rate than any other segment of our society, has dramatically increased the need for trained professionals to serve the elderly. The increasing older population is creating new jobs.

Gerontology -- the study of aging -- provides the knowledge to understand and respond to the emotional and physiological changes of aging, and to administer services specifically for the needs of the elderly.

Montay College is one of the few schools offering a gerontology program on the undergraduate level, focusing on a career-oriented program during evening hours.

Practical preparation for careers in adult education, counseling services, home health care, housing, adult day care, leisure time activities, long-term care, retirement planning, and administration has produced a spurt in enrollment from ten to 60 students in five short years.

Commenting on a grant from the Retirement Research Foundation recently awarded to the program to fund new courses and new satellite locations, Program Director Linda Gabel remarked,

"We consider this award to be an affirmation of our success in preparing qualified professionals to staff services benefiting the growing number of older adults in our society."

Low income Medicare help

If you're on Medicare and don't have much income, the Social Security Administration wants to make sure that you know about a program that can save you at least $358 each year. It's called the "Qualified Medicare Beneficiary" program, and it can help pay for your Medicare premiums, deductibles, and coinsurance.

Although a notice was sent to Medicare beneficiaries who are likely to be eligible for this program, recent studies show that a significant number of them have not yet applied and are not receiving the benefit.

If you have not applied for the benefit because you don't have enough information about it, let me explain how you qualify and how the program can benefit you.

First of all, you must be age 65 or older, or disabled, and your income and resources must be low enough for you to meet the State requirements for medical assistance or "Medicaid." It is your State Medicaid agency that is required to pay your out-of-pocket Medicare costs. That agency also must determine if you qualify for the benefit.

The rules may vary from state to state, but in general your total income for calendar year 1991 cannot be higher than the Federal poverty income level of $6,620 for one person and $8,880 for a married couple. In addition, you cannot have resources such as bank accounts or stocks and bonds worth more than $4,000 for an individual or $6,000 for a couple.

The $29.90 monthly premium for Medicare medical insurance coverage is taken out of your Social Security check every month. If you qualify, this program will pay that premium for you, as well as some of the other Medicare charges you've been paying up to now.

For more information, contact your State or local welfare, social service or public health agency.

Rules of Road review course

The purpose of the course is to help applicants pass the Illinois drivers license renewal examination. Drivers are informed about the current vision and driving ability parts of the examination. The course also prepares applicants for the general written and road sign examination.

Retirement Fund management essential

by Jeffrey Cardella
Edward D. Jones & Co.

One of the major concerns of many retired people is outliving their income.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 30.2 million people depend to some degree on Social Security, which is neither adequate or intended to be the sole source of retirement income. Another 7.9 million look to private company pension plans and personal savings as their other additional income. Often the income from these isn't adequate to offer much more than poverty existence.

In order to meet the rising cost of living, these retirees frequently must begin regular withdrawals from their principal. They begin to fear all their retirement funds and savings will soon be gone.

Although there are no guaranteed solutions to this problem, there are ways to management retirement income so, with prudent planning, funds won't be depleted during your lifetime.

For example, consider a male who retires at age 65, takes his company retirement benefits in a lump sum settlement and, within the 60 days required, deposits them into an IRA rollover.

There's no tax on his retirement funds at this time, and they continue to grow, tax deferred until the man reaches 70 1/2 when he must begin withdrawals. At that time our retiree has several options designed to provide income for the rest of his life. One option is to annuitize.

Many major insurance companies offer annuities with a variety of options. One option is regular monthly payments for the life of the annuitant or a period of 10 years, whichever is longer. For example, if at the annuity starting date the annuitant is age 70 and deposits $100,000, one major insurance company promises to pay $1,067 each month for life. These payments vary among insurance companies, but they're all calculated on the amount of money invested, the age of the annuitant, and the guarantees of the insurance company. If the annuitant should die before 10 years, his beneficiary continues to receive this payment for the remainder of that period.

The negative features of such a contract are: the return is generally lower than that of other investments; it never increases, and at the end of the period any money which is left becomes the property of the insurance company. There's nothing left for your heirs or estate. However, by using the annuity, you can't outlive the income. This is a feature that many retired people desire.

Another approach to lessen the risk of prematurely depleting an IRA is to have your funds professionally managed through mutual funds. Since the funds are being managed, the value of the account fluctuates depending on investment results.

Since most mutual fund companies manage a family of funds with various investment objectives and risks, the retiree has the option to select one or more of these funds as an investment. He also has the right to transfer the assets from one fund to another within the group when, and if, his investment objectives change.

These are only two examples of how retirement funds can be prudently managed. If you are planning retirement in the near future, you owe it to yourself to investigate options. If you are already retired, examine your current plan and determine if you are at a risk of outliving your income.

With interest rates falling, as they are today, investing with a sense of direction is even more important. It can make a difference in security of your retirement years, when inflation rears its ugly head.

Dental help for seniors

The Illinois Retired Teachers Association Foundation Denture Referral Program has expanded its program to meet the needs of older adults in Illinois.

Initially, the program assisted only retired teachers. To qualify for the program, participants must be:

- part of the Department of Revenue's Circuit Breaker Program (household income must be less than $14,000);
- 65 or older;
- ineligible for Medicaid or private dental insurance.

Under the current foundation program, any doctor volunteering for the program agrees to provide dentures to at least four eligible patients a year for a cost of $10 for an initial exam, $20 for all X-rays and $225 per full denture unit. Other treatment may be available at a fixed or discounted price.

Health & Home Management names Director of Operations

Operating four, highly respected nursing care facilities is more than a full time job for one person. That's why Sidney Glenner, C.E.O. of Lincolnwood-based Health and Home Management carefully chose two key management experts who share his philosophy that "we are in the field to provide the best possible quality care to the elderly and chronically ill."

Glenner along with Chief Operating Officer, Nancy Crutcher, R.N., a 15 year veteran employee of Health and Home Management and newly appointed Director of Operations, Chuck Trocchio, are an integral part of this dynamic team.

Glenner is very much at the helm operating GlenBridge Nursing Centre in Niles, Glen Oaks Nursing Centre in Northbrook, Rogers Park's GlenCrest Nursing Centre, and Irving Park's Elston Nursing Centre.

"I can truthfully say that every day I'm excited to go to work," Glenner says, shuttling between his office and the four facilities. "It's challenging and exciting. Mine is a people position."

Currently 1025 residents and over 720 employees are part of Glenner's extended family. The Crutcher and Trocchio duo see that both nursing and operational areas meet the highest standards.

Crutcher, an R.N. who has worked in positions of increasing responsibility for Health and Home for 15 years, is a petite dynamo who was given the nickname "Mighty Mouse" by her subordinates.

"Employees look up to her and admire her. She's highly thought of professionally all over the state of Illinois," Glenner says. "They know when she says she's going to take something on, it gets done."

Ironically, both Crutcher and Glenner moved from theological backgrounds to their current humanitarian calling. She came from a convent and he was a hospital chaplain as well as providing chaplaincy within a university setting.

"He is an extremely good manager," Crutcher says, indicating she doesn't ever want to work for anyone else but Glenner. "He gets me what I need for my patients. He's never said 'no' to anything I've wanted for them."

The "Easy Access" Program that Health and Home has implemented at its nursing center was one of the things that patients wanted, as well as hospital social workers and physicians. It positively allows a patient to be placed in a nursing center without the necessity of making numerous phone calls. All four homes are equipped for off-hour admissions, benefiting those individuals taken to emergency rooms who are not sick enough to require hospitalization but are too sick to remain in their homes.

"We made it quite convenient for our residents," Glenner says, adding that easy access also refers to accessibility of nursing staff and administration. "It's not just admitting and forgetting a patient."

"You have to place patient care first," Trocchio emphasizes. "Then the business end will come into play."

"He's an ombudsman," says Glenner, describing Trocchio's relationships to the new layer of management. He has a long background of nursing home administrative experience applying his MBA to ensuring that every nursing home in the management group will have top standards. Currently two Health and Home facilities have six star Illinois QIP ratings and the others earn high marks from state surveyors as well.

"You have to have a strong team of people," Trocchio says. "They (Glenner and Crutcher) both have great reputations. Who better to tie myself to than people I can learn from as well." The new Director of Operations indicated his goals were to centralize all four facilities while maintaining their individuality and to strengthen the existing professionalism of the staff.

Judge speaks at senior center

Judge Moshe Jacobus, who was recently appointed a judge by the Supreme Court of Illinois, and is assigned to the Domestic Relations Division of the Circuit Court of Cook County, will be the guest speaker for the Smith Activities Center on Monday, Sept. 16.

Evie Issacson, coordinator, announced the meeting will be held at the Smith Activities Center, 5120 Galitz, Skokie, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Judge Jacobus will address the group on the topic "Know Your Courts."

Judge Jacobus is a graduate of the University of Illinois and received his law degree from DePaul University School of Law. Upon graduation, he served as assistant attorney general for the state of Illinois for 17 years. Prior to becoming a law-

Retirees find friendship at the market

There they were in their usual spot, at a table near the oyster bar, bakery and Peking duck shop. Canes resting against their legs.

Charlie's eyesight isn't so good, so Fran cut his cherry-filled pastry and helped him eat it with a fork.

They are retirees who meet every day in a corner of the Reading Terminal Market, in Philadelphia, escaping loneliness or boredom in the century-old marketplace where trains once rumbled overhead.

The upper level was the passenger terminal for the now-defunct Reading Railroad, and, until two years ago, served commuter trains. One day in the future, the giant old train barn is expected to be the focal point of a new convention center.

George Thomas, 82, a retired janitor, has been coming to the market since he was a boy and remembers when chickens were sold live and carried home on the train.

But now, since his wife died seven years ago, Thomas comes not so much to shop but to socialize.

"I have to get away from the four walls," he said. The klatch began five or six years ago when Thomas met Charlie at the market. Then they met Eddie, and then Jean, and one by one the gathering grew.

"We just took a liking to one another, so we formed a group," said Jean Boeltger, 64, a retired waitress. Her husband likes to stay home and fix radios and televisions, but she enjoys her "outing."

On Sundays, when the market is closed, they meet at the Gallery, a glitzy nearby mall. But they prefer the atmosphere of the market, and its scenery.

Korean grocers, Pennsylvania Dutchmen and proprietors of upscale French bakeries cater to a lunch crowd from downtown offices and people shopping for the evening meal.

From 60,000 to 70,000 people come to the market each week, according to Harry Ochs, president of the Reading Terminal Market Merchants Association. His grandfather started the family meat business in 1906.

But as much as the retirees like the place, they couldn't come every day if the bus trip weren't free for senior citizens from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

"People ask why I don't walk around my own neighborhood, but I feel more safe here," said Thomas, who lives in southwest Philadelphia.

The market's future appeared threatened a few years ago by plans to build the Philadelphia Convention Center above and around it. Plans initially called for closing the market temporarily during construction, but merchants objected and sued in 1989.

Ochs said the agreement that was hammered out will keep the merchants in business and was the best option for the market.

The Convention Center Authority agreed to do the renovations in stages and keep the market open.

While others worried the market would not survive into the 1990s, Boeltger said she had no doubts.

"I didn't ever think they'd close it because it's a landmark," she said. "People come from all over. It has anything in here that you want."

Benchmark seniors go back to school

Seniors will be hitting the books this fall when they attend a series of seminars on senior lifestyles entitled "Endings and Beginnings" at The Benchmark of Hoffman Estates retirement community, 1515 Barrington Road, Hoffman Estates.

The lectures are designed to teach seniors moderation and to improve their lives by making minor modifications.

The first seminar entitled "Gain Without Pain" will be held at 11:30 a.m. Sept. 23. Cindy Alexander, a registered nurse at Hu-mana Hospital will make the presentation.

"If seniors have the desire to quit smoking, change their diet and begin an exercise program, they should do one thing at a time," said Alexander. "They must keep their goals realistic."

The series of seminars will continue every Monday and is sponsored by the Humana Seniors Association. Other topics of discussion include stress management, diet and nutrition and goal setting.

At 77, she's not a typical freshman

At 77, Elsie Saville is not a typical college freshman.

She's old enough to be her classmates' grandmother and was widowed years ago. She's had several careers, still owns a business and needs mechanical aids to compensate for a hearing loss.

Yet there she was at St. Mary's College in California this week, going through registration and other preliminaries for this fall's semester with a vigor, enthusiasm and purpose that bely her age.

"If I could only inspire one older person to do this - to risk, to learn, to expand - it would make such a difference in their lives," she said.

She's a full-fledged freshman, among the oldest ever to attend St. Mary's, and will take four classes this fall. She plans to major in English with an emphasis in drama and hopes to establish a workshop where children can act and use puppets, among other things.

"This all sounds so glorious...I hope that I have it within me to do it," said Saville, who looks forward to getting her degree in 1995. "It's going to be one of the proudest moments in my life when I accomplish this."

Saville tested the waters at St. Mary's last spring as a non-matriculating student, taking a class in acting fundamentals. She was gratified to find at her age that she was able to hear well enough, learn her lines, concentrate and retain a high energy level.

"Everybody was so great. They accepted me so wonderfully...and on stage it was no problem for me. I knew my cues," she said.

"I have never in my life been so comfortable around people who had greater accomplishments than I felt I had, who are younger than I am, and that's a great feeling," said Saville, who has no children.

"It's been an exciting life because I didn't stop living it."

Lawrence House plans Apple Festival

When the leaves on the trees change to their autumn colors the seniors at the Lawrence House Retirement Hotel know it's time to celebrate the arrival of the fall season with their Apple Harvest Festival on Friday, Oct. 4, 1-4 p.m. at 1020 W. Lawrence Ave., Chicago. Guests of all ages are welcome at this free event, which is open to the public.

No harvest celebration would be complete without the magic of music. Old settle in classrooms of young Anne Rutledge sits about where the front row of desks were, and her sister, Mary, would be in front of the blackboard. They're remembering good times at the old high school, now their home.

Their apartment was carved from the science room in the school they attended in the 1930s and 1940s in Pittsburgh's Garfield neighborhood.

St. Lawrence O'Toole, the Roman Catholic elementary and girls' high school, one of 11 shuttered schools revived as apartments for senior citizens in Pittsburgh and its suburbs. The old are settling in the classrooms of the young, and the schools are meeting a new housing need in one of the nation's oldest metropolitan areas.

The sisters' alma mater, sturdy and vacant in 1987, was remodeled for people who needed some attention but not a nursing home, says Rick Schwartz of the Bloomfield-Garfield Corp., a neighborhood revitalization group.

St. Lawrence's became Laurentian Hall, and the principal's office became the manager's office. The bathrooms? An elevator shaft. First grade? A TV lounge. The stairwells? Exactly as they were, the last holdouts, with flecked stone floors and lots of echoes.

"If you wanted to run, you had to take your shoes off," says Mary Rutledge, 60, who like her 59-year-old sister is a nun in the Dominican Sisters of St. Mary of the Springs.

"Otherwise you'd have that clomp, clomp, clomp, and you could guarantee the sister would be waiting for you," she said. "I'll never forget the day someone dropped the organ down the stairs."

Among the neighbors is Betty Boyle, 80, a first-grader when the school opened in 1917. She says she "moved here when I couldn't mow the lawn at my house anymore."

"They have a lot of freedom here," says Mary Anne McGill, the apartment manager and another alumna. "There's dinner every weeknight, and that kind of forces everyone to get dressed and get out and be with people. But they're pretty much left to themselves."

Another converted school, Just Inn on the city's Mount Washington, provides more care for residents whose average age is 75. There's someone on call around the clock, a doctor who stops by and a kitchen serving three meals a day.

It once was St. Justin's High, where Johnny Unitas played scholastic football. But the sport of choice these days is basketball on 6-foot hoops, and the halls are lined with railings, not lockers. Residents lift leg weights and ride exercise bikes as part of a Mercy Hospital study on geriatric health.

St. Justin's Roman Catholic Church converted the school when some tenants of the parish's elderly high-rise needed more care, the Rev. John Stach says. At Laurentian Hall, the Rutledges have nicknamed their apartment "Margaretville" for Sister Marguerite, the science teacher.

Once the space meant learning the periodic table, constellations and the organs of the body. Now it's two bedrooms, morning coffee and Pittsburgh Pirates games on TV.

"It was a beautiful place to grow up," says Mary Rutledge. "Everyone was poor, but we were all the same so it didn't matter. We all had nicknames - Oochie, Cherry Nose, Peachy. We were the Garfield Gang."

Like the school, the neighborhood has changed, and the sisters acknowledge it's not the friendly, bustling blocks they knew. The only survivor from a merchants' heyday of movie houses, dry goods shops and ice cream parlors is a funeral home.

"We had a grocer on our hill who carried everyone from payday to payday. She kept a list, and when you had the money, you paid," Mary Rutledge says. "You could go up the hill and every door would be unlocked."

These days, Laurentian Hall uses electronic security. Loretta Sipple, 75, another St. Lawrence's graduate, pays a driver $3 to bring her and her groceries back from a store a dozen blocks away.

Schwartz says Garfield's problems, including car thefts and drug sales, are like those of many urban neighborhoods. Even so, the converted schools are slowing the onset of blight, says William Long, senior housing planner at Allegheny County's Department of Development.

"So many times, when a school is abandoned, the surrounding area goes along with it," he says. "Putting something there keeps the center of the neighborhood viable, and maintains that community fabric."

Discussion on living wills set

Edward T. Madden, citizen's advocate in the Department of Citizens' Rights, in the office of the Illinois Attorney General, Roland W. Burris, will be the guest speaker for the River Trail Agencies on Wednesday, Sept. 18.

Dottie Cassie, coordinator, announced the meeting will be held at the Recreation Center, 1331 Burning Bush Rd., Mt. Prospect, beginning at 1 p.m. Madden will address the group on the topic "Durable Power of Attorney and Living Wills."

Madden is well-versed in financial scams perpetrated against the general public and the elderly. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois, and has an extensive background that includes administrative operations management in both the public and private sectors.

Senior Expo set for 1992

The Chicago Department on Aging (CDoA) has announced it will co-sponsor Prime Time Expo, an entertainment and information exposition for mature Chicagoland adults.

Other event sponsors include the not-for-profit Northeastern Illinois and Suburban Area Agencies on Aging.

Prime Time Expo premieres at the O'Hare Expo Center in the Chicago suburb of Rosemont on Saturday, June 13, 1992. This exciting new event, an information exposition for mature Chicagoland adults aged 45 to 65+, will run through Monday, June 15, 1992.

"We believe that Prime Time Expo will be a good opportunity for people of all ages from Metropolitan Chicago and surrounding areas to learn about the aging process," said CDoA Commissioner Donald R. Smith, "and the many informative programs and services available to them."

"People don't think about retirement or do adequate financial planning for retirement early enough," Smith continued. "No one should rely on Social Security or pensions alone. Prime Time Expo offers and excellent opportunity for this type of future planning."

The Chicago Department on Aging provides direct programs and services for senior citizens. The Department's mission is threefold: to keep Chicago's elderly citizens living independently in their homes and communities; to ensure that those who reside in institutions are treated with care and dignity; and to provide full and accurate information for senior citizens so they can participate in the development of public policy affecting them.

More than 250 corporations, services, and special agencies are expected to participate in this first-time event. Along with booth displays, special areas in the exhibit hall will include dance and exercise, hobbies and crafts, cooking demonstrations, a main entertainment stage and a series of informative free workshops.

Prime Time Expo will be produced by Professional Exposition Management Company (PEMCO) of Des Plaines. PEMCO manages 12 national and international trade shows, and is a member of the Capital Cities/ABC Diversified Publishing Group.

For more information, write PEMCO at 2400 E. Devon, Suite 205, Des Plaines 60018, or phone (800) 323-5155 toll-free within the U.S. or Canada (all others, (708) 299-3131.)

Lutheran General Medical Group 6000 W. Touhy Ave., Chicago Offers Geriatric Specialized Care

• GERIATRICS AND THE GERIATRIC ASSESSMENT

As individuals become older, their needs vary as well as their ability to handle life's changes. Older people and their families may need help when simple tasks of living become too difficult.

A geriatrician is a physician devoted to caring for and promoting the health of elderly persons. The geriatrician is trained to treat the complex problems of aging. Special expertise is developed in diagnosing and treating problems unique to the elderly. Geriatricians strive to improve an elderly individual's ability to function.

A specialized service provided by our geriatricians is the Geriatric Assessment. The geriatrician, along with a team of health care professionals, conducts an evaluation that assesses all aspects of a person's life.

• WHAT IS A GERIATRIC ASSESSMENT?

Geriatric Assessment is a specialized program for older adults who are experiencing difficulties with daily activities, family relationships and/or their health. The assessment provides an overview of a person's physical, emotional, social and functional condition, capabilities and limitations. Based on this overview, practical options can be identified to maximize the quality of life for the older person.

• WHO NEEDS AN ASSESSMENT?

Any older adult who experiences changes in normal functioning may be considered for an assessment. Some typical problems that could be evaluated include a decline in physical or mental health, loss of appetite or weight, decreased participation in social activities or a change in sleep patterns.

• WHAT DOES AN ASSESSMENT INCLUDE?

The consultation includes a psychological and social evaluation of the home environment, family and social activities and a comprehensive physical examination by a physician and/or a psychiatrist. The physician's examination is designed to address specific conditions of aging.

• HOW IS THE EVALUATION GIVEN?

The team will formulate a treatment plan and then review it with the elderly person and his or her family. The team will recommend resources that can help the individual live a more independent life. The evaluation can be sent to the person's primary physician.

• IS THERE A FOLLOW-UP PROCEDURE?

The Geriatric Assessment team will contact each person evaluated after six months to ensure that the prescribed treatment plan is appropriate and that the program is being followed.

• WHAT ARE THE COSTS?

Fees for physician services and diagnostic testing are covered by most insurance plans.
