From the Left Hand

By Bud Besser

Crain's Chicago Business magazine reported ABT Appliances had the second largest revenue increase among Chicagoland's privately-held companies last year. ABT's revenue increased to $80 million, up 104% from 1999.

How important is this revenue for the local community? A return of 1% sales tax money from the State of Illinois would mean a $800,000 return to its local village. And how important is $800,000 to its village, in this case Morton Grove? This revenue could provide free public bus service to its community, which would be a boon to its residents as well as to its local businesses.

District 71 adjusts, cuts 7 teachers

District 71 has cut 21 staff positions. Off the rolls are seven full-time teachers, one part time teacher, four teacher's aids, one community liaison and six cafeteria employees, as it continues to adjust to the defeat April 3 of two revenue-enhancing referendums. Supt. Eugene Zaleski said the board is still discussing which programs and

Teens found unconscious in Skokie

Two teens found unconscious in a car in Skokie had ingested the club drug, GHB, police said. Benjamin Meglei, 19, of the 7900 block of Karlov Avenue was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence, improper parking and traffic violations.

Another 19-year-old man from Libertyville was found in

Niles bank robbery linked to "North Side Robber"

The man believed to be responsible for four bank robberies since early December is believed to be the 'North Side Robber.'

An FBI spokesman said that in all four robberies the robber made his demands with a note and indicated he carried a gun, although none was seen.

The most recent robbery was April 17 at the World Savings Bank FSB, 2289 Howard Street in Evanston.

According to Chicago police reports, the first took place on Dec. 7, 2000 at the First National Bank of Wheaton, 7757 W. Devon Ave., Chicago, about 3:30. The suspect handed a teller a note demanding $20 and $50 bills, "quickly and quietly, or you'll get hurt." The robber was given $1,250 and escaped on foot.

On Feb. 22, the suspect walked into the TCF National Bank branch at 7759 N. Milwaukee Ave. in Niles about 5:40 pm, waited, then approached the window of the third teller, and handed over a note, "This is a robbery, large bills only." The teller used a "dye pack" as a source for about $370 in 20's and 50's. The robber grabbed

Owner of MG stables charged in 1984 arson

Frank Jayne, Jr., 67, nephew of the notorious horseman, Silas Jayne, was charged with burning down Northwestern Stables in Morton Grove in September of 1984.

Although no horses were killed in the fire, Jayne did collect roughly $68,000 insurance.

Sources said that Jayne allegedly helped spread gasoline through the building. The same sources said that others helped.

The probe into this arson case was led by the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, with assistance of the Morton Grove Fire and Police Departments and the Illinois State Fire Marshal's Office.

War hero pleads guilty in local bank robberies

How strange does it get that a veteran of the Normandy invasion and the Battle of the Bulge, a Silver Star recipient to boot, ends up robbing banks in his 70s?

Harry Rabin of Buffalo Grove told his strange story to U.S. District Judge James Holder-man. He had just received a sentence of three years in prison for bank robbery.

Rabin told of losing his wife after 40-plus years and how that crushed him emotionally. So he went to a matchmaker, through whom he met a 78-year old

Getting into the swim on pool safety

(NAPS) -- Pool safety is no accident. It should begin before you dive in, say experts at BioGuard, a leading manufacturer of pool and spa care products.

Here are some pool safety tips you may want to dip into:

- Don't allow young children to swim unsupervised.
- Set and enforce strict pool rules: no running; only proper use of diving boards and slides.
- Keep a Shepherd's crook and life preserver by the pool at all times.
- Always have a first-aid kit handy.

- Check the pH and sanitizer levels before you take the first swim. Bring a water sample into a local BioGuard authorized dealer for a free testing.

Be careful with pool chemicals. Never smoke around them and keep chemicals out of the reach of children.

To locate a BioGuard authorized dealer, visit www.bioguard.com or check your local yellow pages.

Nasby named to Dean's Honor Roll at Creighton

Creighton University student Genevieve Nasby of Skokie has been named to the Dean's Honor Roll for academic achievement during the first semester of the 2000-2001 academic year.

Full-time students who achieve a grade-point average of at least a 3.5 on a 4.0 scale are eligible for the Dean's Honor Roll.

Getting your feet wet

(NAPS) -- Getting into the water can be more than just good exercise; it could also be a lifesaver. But when you venture into the waves, remember: safety first.

Here are some water safety tips from lifeguards who have competed in the Foster's Lager National Lifeguard Championships:

- Learn to swim. It's fun and it could save your life.
- Never swim alone; always swim with a buddy, preferably near a staffed lifeguard tower.
- Know your swimming limits and stay within them.
- Be mindful of weaker swimmers -- if they appear tired, encourage them to rest on land.

Don't drink before swimming. Alcohol impairs your balance, coordination and judgment.

Never dive into unknown waters or into shallow breaking waves. Obey "No Diving" signs. Enter the water feet first to know the depth.

Do not eat or chew gum while swimming. You could choke.

Beware of the "terrible too's" -- too tired, too cold, too far from safety, too much sun, too much strenuous activity.

Use sunscreen because sunburns are dangerous and you need to minimize midday exposure.

Learn CPR.

The Foster's Lager National Lifeguard Championships are a culmination of eight regional events held throughout the U.S. every year. Over 1,200 professional lifeguards compete for the title of Nation's Best.

Savings vs. Debt — The Battle Continues

"If you're part of the more than 40 percent of Americans who have no savings, you are one paycheck away from financial ruin," said Mike Kidwell, vice president and co-founder of Myvesta.org. "All it takes is one unexpected event, like a job loss or a medical emergency, and your financial life could be flipped upside down."

With a slowing economy many people are tightening their wallets, taking a hard look at their finances and realizing they may have gotten in well over their heads. According to Kidwell, "Now is the time to step back, get a clear picture of your situation and develop a plan of action."

"People assume that they can't build wealth as they pay down debt," Kidwell said. "Not only is it important to pay off debt, it's also important to put money into a savings account for emergencies. Otherwise all that work you've done to reduce your debt load will be wiped out if you have to charge unexpected expenses."

Kidwell added, "If you're receiving a tax refund or any other extra income such as a settlement or bonus, don't spend all of it. Put at least half in savings and enjoy the rest. That way you have some fun money and some emergency cash."

During the past decade of economic prosperity many Americans overextended themselves by buying big homes, charging items on credit, buying new cars and not thinking about how they were going to pay for it. "People don't save up for big purchases anymore," says Kidwell, "We live on instant gratification: we want everything now. It sounds simple, but saving up for a big purchase makes more financial sense than charging it and it makes the moment when you do have enough cash saved up to make the purchase that much sweeter."

Kidwell offers these suggestions:

- Start saving now! You may already be putting money into a 401k or other retirement plan, but you need cash that is readily available to you. Start with whatever amount you can afford and watch your savings grow.

- See if you can have the amount you want to save directly taken out of your paycheck and deposited into your savings account. That way it's already put into savings before you have a chance to spend it. You won't miss that money at all.

"It doesn't matter if you save $5 or $500 a week," Kidwell said. "Start with whatever amount is comfortable for you. When the time comes and you need the money, you'll be glad you did."

Tips to avoid conflict when visiting the dentist with children

General and pediatric dentists are accustomed to treating the dental needs of their small patients. Sometimes they don't know how to handle the actions of the child's parents, turning a dental visit into a bad situation for everyone. To make visiting the dentist painless for all involved, the Chicago Dental Society has issued the following guidelines for parents to consider.

Parents can avoid interfering with the care of their children by being aware of some of the most common problems dentists encounter when dealing with parents.

•Arrive on time for the appointment and schedule an appropriate amount of time for treatment. "Parents need to appreciate that patients are on kid time," says Mary Hayes, DDS, a pediatric dentist who practices in Chicago. "Kids need time to relax and be given the opportunity to learn - not rushed through the experience."

•Follow the advice prescribed by the dentist. "The parents' responsibility is to do dentistry every day at home, and the professional guides the care," says Dr. Hayes. "It's the parents' responsibility to follow the advice given by the dentist."

•Be courteous to the receptionist and office personnel on the phone. Do not insist on immediate attention and then not show up or call to cancel the appointment.

•Only bring those children who have an appointment. "Call in advance. People who bring extra kids without calling are taking chances that they may not be seen. This also applies to parents who don't bring all children with appointments."

•Do not expect a diagnosis over the phone - the dentist needs to examine a child. "Every child's needs are different and dentists simply cannot make a diagnosis over the phone. It is improper to expect an accurate diagnosis without the child having direct contact with the doctor."

•Don't expect the dentist to agree with your self-diagnosis. "Parents sometimes are convinced that their child has a condition described recently in a magazine or newspaper, or they want a diagnosis they believe will cost less money to treat. Parents can differ respectfully and pursue second opinions. However, it is important to work out good communications between parents, office staff and dentist because trust helps ensure successful treatment for the child."

•Don't transfer your fear to your children. "Most kids are very calm about dental visits but pick up fear from the way their parents are acting - the expressions on their faces or body language. When parents anticipate pain before dental treatment has begun, problems frequently arise. Parents need to recognize that their presence is sometimes detrimental to care and they may be asked to remain in the waiting room. The dental appointment is a great time for children to learn to be on their own."

•Don't pretend there is an emergency. "The opposite is when there is a true emergency but the parent won't bring the child in because it doesn't fit their schedules. Sometimes, we'll see a child whose face has been swollen for several days and we ask the parent why they didn't bring the children in. In other cases, we have parents call who want us to confirm over the phone that their child does not have an emergency, they are looking for permission not to come in."

"When it comes to children, the first and foremost goal of any dentist is to make sure the child gets the appropriate treatment and is not suffering pain or experiencing infection," concludes Dr. Hayes. "Parents usually have the same philosophy in mind. If parents can avoid a few key pitfalls, everyone will be happy and the best care will be delivered."

Ronald McDonald Children's Hospital makes efforts to make sleepwear safer

The Ronald McDonald Children's Hospital of Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood, has emerged as one of the institutional leaders advocating a return of tougher federal government restrictions on the sale of sleepwear in an effort to provide some protection against the risk of serious burns in children.

The burn center provides care to an estimated 150 to 200 children each year.

As a board member and secretary for the American Burn Association (ABA), Gamelli has joined his voice with those of other leading national burn experts in petitioning the Consumer Products Safety Commission (CPSC) to return to the stricter standards that governed the manufacture and sale of children's sleepwear prior to 1997.

In that year, CPSC exempted infant garments from all the flammability restrictions that had been in place for more than 20 years and permitted the use of flammable materials in tight-fitting sleepwear in larger sizes for older children. Tight-fitting sleepwear is known to be at lower risk than loose-fitting wear, which is more likely to brush up against sources of ignition.

For older children, sleepwear that is not flame-retardant must be nearly skintight to provide some level of safety, and even such tight-fitting garments may not compensate for the increased flammability of cotton and other materials now permitted in the manufacture of these clothes.

Gamelli and others also have questioned the assumption that parents will clothe their children in skintight sleepwear when opting to buy garments containing flammable materials. Actually, parents tend to buy larger sizes of the same children's garment to allow room for growth, pass oversized hand-me-downs from one sibling to the next or allow their children to wear non-traditional sleepwear, such as cotton T-shirts, sweatshirts and shorts, to bed.

Burn experts and representatives of the ABA contend that the original sleepwear standards adopted in the early 1970s dramatically reduced the numbers of children severely burned or killed by fire. In comparing similar time periods before and after the flammability restrictions were lifted, one major children's hospital in the United States determined that the number of its pediatric admissions for burns due to ignition of clothing and increased by 55 percent following the relaxation of sleepwear standards.

Flame-retardant sleepwear will not protect children from scalds, which represent the majority of burn injuries treated in the Ronald McDonald Children's Hospital of Loyola, but it would provide a level of protection against serious burns from other sources, Gamelli said.

Although early last year the CPSC initiated an overall review of the sleepwear situation with the intention of possibly restoring the former flammability standards, no further actions at the federal level have occurred to date.

Music of the Baroque

Music of the Baroque will conclude its 30th season celebration in May with A Classical Feast, a program of works by Mozart, Haydn, and Myslivecek. The three Chicago-area concerts also mark Music Director Thomas Wikman's last appearances with the group before stepping down to assume the title of Conductor Laureate.

Topping the menu is Mozart's Symphony No. 41 in C Major, "Jupiter," the last - and possibly greatest - symphonic work the composer ever wrote. Metropolitan and Lyric Opera Star Susanne Mentzer will join forces with the MOB Orchestra, wielding her considerable dramatic talent in Haydn's glorious Arianna a Naxos. And concertmaster Elliott Golub will cleanse the palate with the exquisite Concerto in D Major for violin by Myslivecek, also known as "the Mozart of Prague." Music Director Thomas Wikman commented, "The title of this program, A Classical Feast, describes my feelings about this music perfectly. Lovers of Mozart, Haydn, and the Classical period in general will leave this concert completely satiated."

Kids' College Summer Golf Clinics

Children between the ages of 7-14 can learn the fundamentals of golf at the Summer Golf Clinics sponsored by Oakton's Kids' College. The clinics meet from 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. on Mondays-Thursdays in two sessions, June 11-14 and June 18-21, at the Des Plaines campus, 1600 E. Golf road. All equipment is supplied by Oakton.

Rich Bolinder, Oakton golf instructor, and three assistants will stress the fundamentals of the game, including the golf swing and a variety of shots. The fee to attend one clinic is $80; two clinics cost $150. For more information, call (847) 635-1425.

Karizma features jazz duo every Friday

The Peter Sax Duo will be featured each Friday night at Karizma Restaurant, 4741 Main Street in Skokie.

"We just wanted to do something extra for our customers," says Elaine Cook, general manager and co-owner.

The Peter Sax Duo plays "straight ahead" jazz featuring standard songs by Herbie Hancock, Miles Davis, Cole Porter and Gershwin played on acoustic piano and bass.

Karizma features the contemporary American cuisine of Chef/Owner Marty Rogak, who was recently named by Chicago Sun-Times Dining Critic Pat Bruno as one of the Top 10 Chefs to Watch for 2001.

For dinner reservations call 847-674-6163.

Stronger Longer Age and Strength

Seven out of 10 women over age 70 are unable to lift just 10 pounds. About seven out of 20 elderly men are equally frail. Think of the everyday activities that become difficult when you can't lift even 10 pounds of weight: shopping for groceries, doing household chores, opening a window, getting out of the bathtub or even rising from the toilet.

"All of us want to remain as active and independent as possible for as long as we can," says physical therapist Lorie Schleck, primary author of Staying Strong, a book of strength-building exercises for seniors published by Fairview Press. "Fortunately, we can do much to maintain our quality of life as we age by doing regular strength training. Most of the decline in muscular strength that we associate with aging is really due to inactivity."

According to Schleck, by beginning a regular strength training program at any age, you can:

- Maintain bone density
- Improve balance; thereby avoiding falls -- the main cause of accidental death and injury in the elderly
- Perform more daily tasks, with greater ease

***
When desire dies, fear is born.
—Baltasar Gracian
***

- Improve mobility
- Control body weight and reduce body fat

Staying Strong contains easy, at-home exercises -- requiring no free weights or expensive workout equipment -- that can be performed even by those who are relatively immobile, suffering from osteoporosis or recovering from surgery or illness.

Illustrated with over 300 photographs, the 256-page book sells for $14.95. To order, call toll-free 1(800) 544-8207. Mention this article to receive a 20% discount and free shipping.

Mothers and daughters to discuss Bat 6

Librarian Veronica Schwartz will lead a discussion of Bat 6 by Virginia Euwer Wolff for girls in fourth through eighth grade and their mothers from 7-8 p.m., May 24. (This program was originally planned for April 12, but was rescheduled.) Books are available one month prior in the Youth Services Department, and advance registration is required. Please phone (847) 376-2839 for information.

Some pioneer women played a softball game called Bat 6 that became an annual tradition. In 1949, following World War II, the tradition continued. Wolff's book is about the girls on two teams. Each team gets a new player. One is a long lost Japanese friend just back from an internment camp, and the other is a mysterious girl whom nobody knows.

The game is well under way when something terrible happens that changes the lives of every player. This tragedy brings the opposing sides together to face the facts and resolve the problem.

Virginia Euwer Wolff looks at life from the viewpoints of teenagers who are seldom represented in teen literature. She has published fewer novels per year than most authors, yet every one of her books has been highly praised. Her first novel for teens, Probably Still Nick Swansen, is regarded as one of the 100 Best of the Best Books for Young Adults published between 1967 and 1992. Her third book, Make Lemonade, received special honors from library reviewers, parents, young people, and writing colleagues. Her latest book is True Believer, published this year.

Women's financial issues

A financial program on "Women's Issues in the Year 2001" will be presented at the Des Plaines Public Library from 7-9 p.m. on Wednesday, May 16. Guest speaker is Laurie Pascarella, CFP, of Paine Webber, Inc. The program is free, but advance registration is necessary. Phone (847) 376-2787 for details or to register.

Topics of discussion will include the importance of implementing a personal financial plan, understanding the divorce process, how to divide marital assets (including the house and career assets) to your advantage, how to invest and protect your inheritance, and how to develop an estate plan, even if you think you don't need one.

Pascarella is a graduate of the University of Illinois and has 10 years of experience in the financial services industry. In 1996, she completed a rigorous program in order to achieve her Certified Financial Planner designation. She is also fully licensed by the National Association of Securities Dealers and the State of Illinois for her insurance license. Most recently, she completed a course through the Institute of Certified Divorce planners to become more knowledgeable about the financial aspects of divorce planning.

The business meeting is at 3 p.m. and then at 4 p.m. a very special program will be presented with TV-famous pianist Reginald Robinson playing Scott Joplin's syncopated ragtime music and also his own compositions.

Such music with one hand playing something quite different from the other in a happy and uplifting manner is truly a unique talent and much to be admired.

We will also have a World Relief organization speaker and refugees recently arrived in Chicago to talk about their experiences and great joy of coming to a peaceful place — America. You may call Per-Hugo Kristensson at (847) 825-8408 for information on what household items can be donated for their new households.

Guest conductor Anatoly Ly-senko will direct the LCO in the Villa-Lobos Concerto for Guitar and Small Orchestra, with Philip Simmons as soloist. Also on the program titled "Hat Dance" will be music of Massenet, Lalo, and Honneger.

Tickets are $15, $10 for seniors and students. For further information, please telephone (847) 674-0039.

The LCO recently presented its annual educational outreach program at all three Lincolnwood Public Schools, and on May 10, Mr. Simmons will guest conduct the Lincoln Hall Advanced String Orchestra in performance.

The Responsibilities of Being in the Middle

Most of us face a time in our lives, somewhere between our late 30's and our early 50's, when we become a member of the "sandwich" generation. We have children of our own, perhaps at home, at college, or starting a career, who still need us as parents, even though it may be in considerably different ways than when they were younger.

At the same time, we may have our own parents who are now beginning to experience some of the physical limitations that normally come with aging. While these limitations are not necessarily crippling, our parents may be feeling the frustration of not being able to do everything they could a few short years before. They find they are not as independent as they might like to be, and may be turning to us more often for assistance with various matters.

We still have responsibilities for parenting our children while, at the same time, our roles are changing with our own parents, sometimes to the point where we may be taking on the role of parent to them as well. As our children are becoming more independent (something for which most of us are glad), our parents may be becoming more dependent on us to do things or make decisions for them, and we are caught in the middle - "sandwiched" between our children and our parents.

Such a situation can bring with it frustrations and problems, especially in light of our own situation. Many of us will be mid-career, probably enjoying our peak earning years. We may be at a job level with considerable supervisory responsibility, or have become self-employed or started our own business. Career-wise, this can often be a time of considerable stress and responsibility, and one that may demand a great deal of our time and attention.

The frustration, of course, is in finding the time to deal with the demands our children and parents may also be placing upon us. A good starting point may be in examining the situation for your own children. They are struggling for independence. Do what you can to allow them increasing amounts of responsibility and commensurate freedom to run their own lives.

Letting go of the parenting role is not always easy for most people. One way to lessen the blow is to keep the lines of communication open. Invite your children to share concerns or questions as they arise. Treat them, as much as possible, as adults in providing answers and advice. But also let them know that they will be expected to initiate more of the conversations. That responsibility is part of their growing independence.

This can free you up somewhat to deal with your changing role with your own parents. While you will certainly invite them to share any concerns or ask any questions regarding finances, health, and other issues, you may also find that it is you who will need increasingly to initiate these conversations.

You will have to ask about how they are doing and perhaps even be insistent to get complete answers. You may want to check with them to be sure that they are getting the healthcare they need, paying their bills on time, and managing their finances properly.

In a sense, the responsibility that you are shedding in regard to your children is what you will be picking up with your parents. And if you look at it in that light it can help make the burden lighter. If you can see it not as added responsibility, but as a continuation of responsibility, you may be able to minimize the frustration. If you have brothers and sisters, it can also be a relief to have a family conference to discuss how these responsibilities for your parents can be shared with one another.

The issues stemming from having aging parents are a common problem today. Many counselors deal with it on a regular basis and can provide significant help. Check with your local council on aging, senior citizen center or in the phone directory under counselors if you feel a professional counselor could help you in dealing with your situation.

JULIE Fact Sheet

JULIE, Inc. (Joint Utility Locating Information for Excavators), also known as the "Illinois One-Call System," is a not-for-profit corporation that provides contractors/excavators, homeowners, and others who may be disturbing the earth, with a free service through a single toll-free phone number (1-800-892-0123) to call for the locating and marketing of underground utility facilities.

JULIE is not a utility. JULIE owns no facilities and does not locate underground facilities. JULIE serves as a message handling service for utilities, taking information about planned excavations and distributing this information to its utility membership. It is then the responsibility of each utility to mark the location of their underground facilities at the excavation site.

JULIE has logged over 11 million calls and its annual call volume makes it one of the largest one-call systems in the United States. Annual call volume has grown from 680,000 in 1994 to over 962,000 in 2000, an increase of over 41 percent. Because one call to JULIE can result in communication with multiple member utility companies, calls in 2000 resulted in over 5.99 million notification messages being transmitted to members.

Excavators are required to notify JULIE at least two working days (excluding weekends and holidays) in advance of the start of their project. The call to and service provided by JULIE is free to the excavator. Member utilities fully support JULIE based upon their message volume.

JULIE was formed in 1974 by the owners and operators of underground facilities as a means of reducing damage to those facilities. JULIE serves all of Illinois, with the exception of the city of Chicago, which is served by the Chicago Utility Alert Network (312) 744-7000.

In 1976, the JULIE System was accepted by the Illinois Commerce Commission as compliance with the one-call notification section of General Order 185.

The Illinois General Assembly enacted the Illinois Underground Utility Facilities Damage Prevention Act on January 1, 1991. The law requires persons excavating to contact the Illinois One-Call System before digging, and requires owners of underground utilities to be members of the one-call system. There are approximately 935 member companies in JULIE.

JULIE is involved in a variety of public and member education and safety programs aimed at increasing use of the one-call system and reducing accidents through increased awareness of the excavation dangers.

JULIE, Inc. has approximately 100 employees (during peak seasons) and is located in Joliet, IL.

Auxiliary attends patriotic conference

The 73rd annual Patriotic Conference of the Dept. of Illinois, American Legion Auxiliary was held recently at the Hyatt Regency-Woodfield in Schaumburg.

This is a yearly function which emphasizes Americanism and National Security programs. Attendees are Auxiliary members and guests from the state, usually numbering 500.

Representing the Morton Grove Unit #134 of the American Legion were Doree Connolly and Lorry Nehart, both past presidents of the group. Mrs. Connolly also served as Seventh District, American Legion Auxiliary president.

Special guest was National President Kristine West whose special theme this year was Volunteers in Service. Her special project was the Department of Veterans Affairs National Creative Arts Festival. This festival to which she pledged $50,000 promotes veterans' opportunities to strengthen and enhance their skills and receive recognition for their accomplishments.

Motivational speaker Charlie Tyrian spoke on "Life" and "survivor kits" were distributed to all. He entered the U.S. Marine Corps in 1963 and became one of the top 100 jungle leaders in the organization.

Col. Gary Knapp, Cmdr. of the 2D Brigade of 2D Region ROTC spoke on that program which Auxiliary members have become involved with. Morton Grove for instance, yearly presents medals to outstanding ROTC cadets at Lane Tech and Roosevelt.

Col. Knapp was commissioned an Infantry Officer in 1976 and holds a Master of Arts degree in Management from Webster University and a Master of Science degree in National Resource Strategy from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

The Past Presidents Club of the Dept. of Illinois composed of women who served as president on one or more of the various levels, hosted a card party and reception in the evening.

Many national and state dignitaries were present and introduced.

Entertainment during the conference was furnished by the combined chorus of the Lake-

Holy Family Medical Center's 'little league team'

Holy Family Medical Center has their own little league team with 2 very special coaches. We are speaking about Joe and Margaret Holohan who delivered all of their 9 children at the Medical Center. Dr. Harbans Deol, is the physician who delivered all 9 children. The couple has lived in Arlington Heights since 1985 and have had a wonderful experience at Holy Family Medical Center. "The staff is friendly and the personal attention you receive is wonderful. I just delivered my ninth child and I feel like I am right at home," says Margaret Holohan.

In-stent restenosis fact sheet

What is coronary artery restenosis? Often described as the 'Achilles' heel of interventional cardiology, restenosis is the reocclusion, or relogging, of a coronary artery following a successful intravascular procedure to reestablish adequate blood flow through the vessel.

What is in-stent restenosis? In-stent restenosis is essentially tissue regrowth - the body's attempt to heal the innermost layer of vessel lining where it was disturbed by the placement of the coronary artery stent. As the cells proliferate, they push through the openings in the stent mesh and, over time, cause a progressive narrowing of the stent's center.

How common is in-stent restenosis? Although estimates vary, a substantial percentage of patients who undergo successful implantation of a coronary artery stent experience some degree of in-stent restenosis. Consequently, patients often must undergo repeat treatments to maintain adequate blood flow through the affected artery.

Are some vessels more prone than others to in-stent restenosis? Recent advances in coronary artery stenting have vastly enlarged the realm of treatable coronary artery lesions, enabling cardiologists to deploy stents in lesions previously deemed untreatable or unreachable. Examples include unusually long lesions and lesions in small, narrowed vessels, such as those typically found in diabetics. Unfortunately, lesions in these categories are especially prone to restenosis. Thus, advancements in coronary stent technology have been tempered by the recurrent problem of in-stent restenosis.

Prior to the introduction of brachytherapy, how did the cardiologist treat in-stent restenosis? Even though cardiologists have used a variety of procedures - balloon angioplasty, repeat stenting, rotational atherectomy and excimer laser ablation - to treat in-stent restenosis, recurrence rates have remained high, posing a stubborn obstacle to successful long-term outcomes.

Study links swelling and excessive tissue

Growing evidence now confirms that rhinophyma, the excess growth of tissue on the nose that represents the most advanced stage of rosacea, is a result of the chronic lymphedema (swelling) that often appears in rosacea, according to a new study published in the Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology.

"This study's findings have tracked the link between the vascular system and the more permanent disfiguring effects of rosacea," said Dr. Jonathan Wilkin, director of Dermatologic and Dental Products, U.S. Food and Drug Administration. "This new finding emphasizes the importance of avoiding flushing to prevent later excess tissue growth that cannot be treated with medication."

Lymphedema is the swelling that occurs when excess fluid accumulates because of the lymphatic system's flawed ability to clear it away normally. The study, by Dr. Filippo Aloia and colleagues at the University of Turin in Italy, documented microscopic changes that indicate chronic edema leads to excess tissue. The researchers noted that inadequate drainage may be due to a mechanical obstruction.

An early sign of rhinophyma may be an indentation on the bridge of the nose after wearing glasses, Dr. Wilkin said. Some physicians have even noted that heavy glasses themselves can contribute to swelling of the nose. Opting for a lighter pair of glasses may help.

Vegetables, green tea promote prostate health

(NAPS) -- There are three things you can do to reduce your risk of prostate cancer, or possibly slow the disease's progression: eat well, keep physically active and see your doctor regularly. Mayo Clinic on Prostate Health specifically recommends the following foods to cut your cancer risk:

- Tomatoes contain the chemical lycopene, which is thought to be a potent antioxidant. Antioxidants protect cells from the effect of free radicals, toxic molecules that can damage your cells.

- Soy products -- soybeans, tofu, soy milk and soy flour -- contain compounds which appear to stimulate your body's binding proteins, keeping the sex hormones testosterone and estrogen in check. Because prostate cancer feeds off testosterone, researchers theorize that the less effect the hormone has, the lower your risk of cancer development and progression.

- Green tea contains a chemical called EGCG, which appears to inhibit enzyme activity necessary for cancer growth.

- Cruciferous vegetables -- broccoli, brussels sprouts and cabbage -- contain a certain chemical that appears to block the effects of cancer-causing substances.

- Garlic is eaten a great deal in many areas of the world where there is less prostate cancer and less cancer in general. One theory is that sulfur compounds in garlic enhance immune function, helping to fight off disease.

Mayo Clinic on Prostate Health can help you identify and understand prostate problems and make well-informed decisions about treatment options. The book is available in many libraries and most bookstores for $14.95 or by calling (800) 291-1128, and mention order code 714. #### Arrest

A woman was arrested for shoplifting after she was caught placing clothing and accessories valued at $74.98 under her purse at the TJ Maxx retail store on the 7200 block of Dempster on May 2. The woman went to purchase other merchandise, but continued to conceal a pair of blue jeans ($14.99), a candle holder ($20), and a pair of woman's sandals ($29.99). A Loss Prevention officer stopped the woman at the store's exit doors and led her to the security area where she was detained until police arrived. She was processed for misdemeanor theft, posted bond and was released with a May 24 court date.

The responding officer then said an employee was suspected, as the bathroom door was kept locked. The officer asked to see any money the manager had of her own. The manager took the officer back to her office and produced $130. Four $20 bills and two $10 bills appeared to have just come from an ATM machine.

After an interview, the manager stated that she didn't steal the purse. "I just saw the money sticking out of it," she said she picked up the purse, took the money, then put the bag behind the garbage can in the bathroom.

The manager was processed for misdemeanor theft with a May 24 court date.

Talent takes the stage at Bethany Terrace Nursing Centre

Aging can rob people of their skills — but not of what they accomplished when they were younger. Exhibiting art created by residents earlier in their lives is part of the fun during the Terrace Talent Show for residents, staff, families, and friends of Bethany Terrace Nursing Centre, located at 8425 N. Waukegan Rd. in Morton Grove.

The show, at 2:15 p.m. on Monday, May 14th is free and open to the public. Residents, staff and others will "sing, dance, read poetry, perform musical numbers, and display artwork," says Bethany Terrace activity director Lori Lentz.

Residents' art is especially welcome when it dates back to their earlier lives. "It could be something they did years ago that they're still proud of," Lentz says. "People's abilities may be compromised as they age, but we encourage our residents to show what they did when they were younger. It's a pleasure for us to see other facets of a resident's life before they became part of the Bethany Terrace family."

The Terrace Talent Show, a National Nursing Home Week activity, is one of many events held year-round at Bethany Terrace. Residents enjoy regular musical programs, arts and craft exhibits, pet shows and shopping excursions. Bethany Terrace Nursing Centre has been providing its residents with the best and most advanced care in a home-like setting for more than 35 years. This extensive experience has positioned Bethany Terrace as one of the most knowledgeable health care organizations in the greater Chicago area.

Bethany Terrace Nursing Centre is located at 8425 N. Waukegan Rd., south of Dempster and north of Oakton. For more information about Bethany Terrace Nursing Centre, please call 847/965-8100.

Creative Self-Expression Show at Maine East

The Maine East Fine Arts department staff and students proudly present their "Creative-Expression Show" at The Great Frame Up at 7919 Golf Road in Morton Grove through May 21. A reception for the artists and guests will take place Tuesday, May 15 from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. at The Great Frame Up.

The 34 young artists participating will display their talents in a variety of media, ranging from collage/mixed media/3-D to digital imaging. There will also be several pieces using photography, painting, and drawing/printmaking.

Maine East is about diversity, 70% bilingual

Principal David Barker describes Maine East as "one of only a few high schools in the nation categorized as a 'language minority' high school." There is no ethnic majority here, he explains.

For 25 of his 34 years at Maine East, Barker has been chairman of the school's English-as-second-language program. When he began, the program had twelve students. Now, it has approximately 300 who are active in the program and roughly another 1,500 are bilingual and "are speaking pretty well."

Quoting statistics, Barker says 70 percent of its student body is bilingual, they list 71 birth countries and speak up to 51 languages. The school offers 19 ethnic clubs, plus an internationally-focused group called "Shades of Maine East."

Maine East serves families from Niles, Park Ridge and Des Plaines.

Barker adds that there are few disciplinary problems among the student body which he attributes this to the degree of diversity. It allows no group to feel it has the edge, he says.

Culver OKs two new summer classes

Culver principal Alexandra Nicholson has proposed two new classes for summer school 2001.

In addition to continuing the basic and enrichment courses for reading and math, plus ESL classes, Nicholson has added a cultural enrichment class and, for in-coming kindergartners, a pre-readiness class.

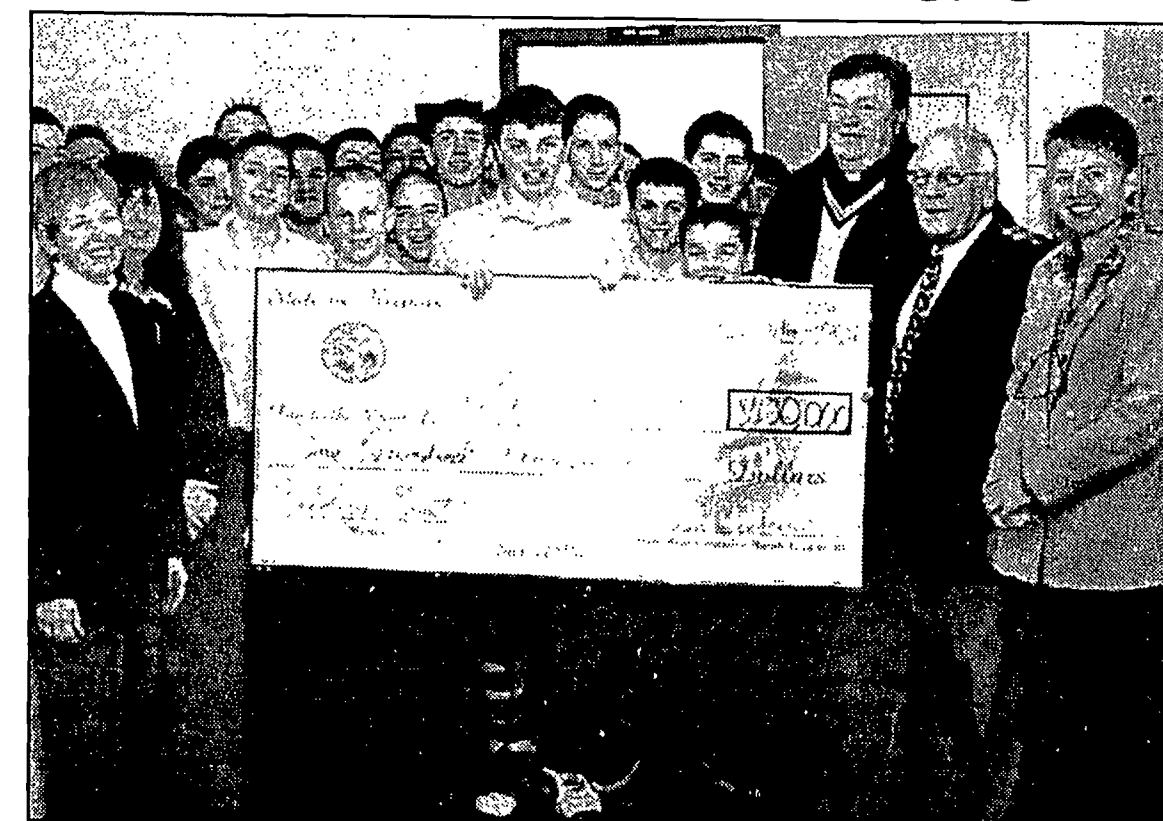

The cultural enrichment program will focus on one new culture for each of four weeks.

"The students will study customs as well as geographic and historic aspects of that culture. I hope that they'll learn a song or dance, experience a visitor from that background," Nicholson said. The class is being offered to teach children to appreciate other cultures.

The pre-readiness class will teach basics like letters and numbers and introduce the social skills youngsters need to survive in a school environment.

Edward Jones: Look Beyond Mutual Fund's Past Performance

If you've ever noticed an ad for a mutual fund, you've probably seen, in a large typeface, some numbers indicating how well the fund has performed in the past few years. The message is clear: This fund is "sizzling" -- and you should be investing in it.

But then, way down at the bottom of the ad, in tiny type, are the words: "Past performance is no guarantee of future results." This isn't just a legal disclaimer -- it's the truth. What a fund has done may not be a guide to what it will do. The factors affecting a mutual fund's performance today may be quite different from those of the past -- so it's never a good idea to rely on history as an investment guide.

If you don't base your mutual fund investment decisions on previous performance, how should you evaluate prospective funds? You'll want to consider a variety of factors, including the following:

- Fees and expenses - Mutual funds charge investors fees and expenses. If you purchase a fund that has high costs, it must perform better than a low-cost fund to generate the same returns. Before you buy a mutual fund, review its prospectus to evaluate its level of fees and expenses. Then, see how these costs relate to those of comparable funds. You may find you can get a "better deal" on a substantially similar fund.

- Age and size of the fund -- Newly created or smaller funds sometimes have excellent short-term performance records -- which can be misleading. Because these funds may invest in just a small number of stocks, a few successful holdings can weight the overall performance. But as the fund adds more stocks, the effect of these winning holdings will be diluted -- and performance may decline. To learn about a fund's age or size, read the prospectus.

- Volatility of the fund -- All stock-based mutual funds will fluctuate in price. But some stock funds are far more volatile than others are -- and, generally speaking, the more volatile a fund is, the greater the investment risk. If you plan on selling some shares of a fund within a year or two, you may want to stay away from the volatile funds, because they might be down at the time you want to sell. By reviewing a mutual fund's prospectus and annual report, you can see how volatile it has been over time. For instance, a fund may report that it's earned 10 percent per year, on average, over the course of 10 years. But when you look at its history, you may find that much of these gains came from two or three strong years, sprinkled among several bad ones. You could be better off looking for a fund whose average return has been fairly constant.

So the next time you're considering investing in a mutual fund, don't stop at the past performance information -- it won't tell you what you need to know. Instead, look at the key factors that may affect your fund's future. In the investment world, tomorrow is much more important than yesterday.

Jeffrey Cardella can be reached at Edward Jones, 8141 N. Milwaukee, Niles, 470-8953.

What's Happening at Oakton

High school students can prepare for the workplace of tomorrow at the sixth annual Career Exploration Camps, scheduled in June at Oakton Community College, 1600 E. Golf Road, Des Plaines. The program is co-sponsored by Oakton, the North Suburban Education to Careers Partnership, and the North Suburban Educational Region for Vocational Education (NSERVE).

This three-week educational program is open to incoming sophomores, juniors and seniors who attend Evanston, Maine and Niles Township High Schools, as well as New Trier and Glenbrook North and South High Schools. Transportation is provided to and from these local high schools and Oakton.

Career Exploration Camps meet from 8 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, from June 11 - 28. Students will earn a semester of high school credit while participating in one of the three career clusters:

- The Careers in Business, Management and Information Technology cluster gives an overview of American business today and the fields of finance, marketing, management, information system, hospitality and travel.

- The Careers in Health Care cluster provides opportunities to meet health care professionals and learn -- in real and simulated settings -- about patient assessment, medical ethics and different therapies.

- In the Careers in Engineering, Manufacturing & Electronics cluster, students will use CAD/CAM and robotics software to design a vehicle, and meet with professionals to learn how the physical sciences apply to design, manufacturing and electronics.

Participants in each cluster will gain first-hand knowledge by visiting different work sites, such as the Chicago Board of Trade, Cook County Courthouse, Northwestern Memorial Hospital, Anti-Cruelty Society, 3-COM Corporation and DeVry Institute of Technology.

Because space is limited for this popular program, students are encouraged to register early with their high school counselors. For more information about the 2001 Career Exploration Camps, call Martha Eldredge Heck, director of the North Suburban Education to Careers Partnership, at (847) 635-1898.

Congress reverses OSHA rules on ergonomic standards

In an unprecedented move, Congress recently voted to repeal the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA's) federal ergonomics standard, in what's being hailed as a victory for manufacturers.

Senate and House opponents used the 1996 Congressional Review Act (CRA) to overturn the ergonomics rule. The act has never before been used to revoke a regulation. "It is through the work of member groups like ours that made this victory possible, and forced Congress to rescind the regulation," said Illinois Manufacturers' Association President and CEO Gregory W. Baise. "Manufacturers can consider this a total victory."

Enacted as part of the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act, the Congressional Review Act empowers Congress to void an agency regulation by separate joint resolutions of disapproval (JRDS), passed by a simple majority in both houses. The regulation is then treated as if it had never gone into effect. It cannot be reissued in substantially the same form unless pursuant to a law enacted after the JRD becomes law.

On March 7, the U.S. House of Representatives voted 223 to 206 to approve the joint resolution of disapproval of OSHA's ergonomics rule. The U.S. Senate voted 56-44 a day earlier to approve the resolution. Both votes were closely along party lines.

e-business, financial success and many more. According to Nick Carter each tape begins as a problem someone has. Every problem has a solution and a specific plan is needed to reach that goal (the solution).

AFL-CIO offers summer program for college students

Since 1996, the AFL-CIO has reached out to a new generation of labor activists through Union Summers, which has graduated nearly 2,000 participants.

Many of these graduates have gone on to become campus activists, fulfill organizing and other roles in the movement, and remain supporters of unions. The AFL-CIO is now accepting applications for this exciting 4-week educational internship as well as its two latest summer programs: Seminary Summer and Law Student Union Summer.

Federal funds available when training for new career

Secretary of Labor Elaine L. Chao has announced that local boards that administer federally-funded workforce training programs are being invited by the Labor Department to compete for grants to provide technical skills training for workers who have lost their jobs, or who want to upgrade their skills or change occupations.

Chao, in a meeting with executives from Silicon Valley high-tech firms, said approximately $135 million will be available for the grants, which are financed by fees paid by employers who bring skilled foreign workers to this country on a temporary basis to work in high skill occupations.

"The Department of Labor is using these resources to make a substantial investment in training American workers for jobs in high-tech industries," Chao said. "The department's Employment and Training Administration will select programs for funding, and we plan to begin announcing the grant awards this summer."

Local workforce investment boards in partnership with at least one business or business association and one community and/or faith-based organization, a higher-education institution or labor union may apply for grants up to $3 million.

Information and procedures to apply for the H-1B Technical Skills Training Grant were published April 13th in the Federal Register. Applications, which are also available on the Internet at www.doleta.gov are being accepted for these technical skills training grants for employed and unemployed American workers.

OSHA now requires more protection for workers handling hypodermics

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration announced recently that changes in its bloodborne pathogens standard intended to reduce needlesticks among healthcare workers and others who handle medical sharps has gone into effect.

The agency is planning a 90-day outreach and education effort before enforcing the new rules.

Mandated by the Needlestick Safety and Prevention Act, changes to OSHA's bloodborne pathogens standard were published January 18, 2001, to take effect April 18, 2001. The revisions clarify the need for employers to select safer needle devices as they become available and to involve employees in identifying and choosing the devices. The updated standard also requires employers to maintain a log of injuries from contaminated sharps.

Specifically, the revised OSHA bloodborne pathogens standard obligates employers to consider safer needle devices when they conduct their annual review of their exposure control plan.

Safer sharps are considered appropriate engineering controls, the best strategy for worker protection. Involving frontline employees in selecting safer devices will help ensure that workers who are using the equipment have the opportunity for input into purchasing decisions.

The new needlestick log will help both employees and employers track all needlesticks to help identify problem areas or operations. The original bloodborne pathogens standard only required recording of those cuts or sticks that actually resulted in illness. The updated standard also includes provisions designed to maintain the privacy of employees who have experienced needlesticks.

Passed unanimously by Congress, the Needlestick Safety and Prevention Act took effect November 6, 2000. It specified revisions of OSHA's bloodborne pathogens standard and directed the agency to make these changes within six months. The legislation exempted OSHA from certain standard rulemaking requirements so that the revised bloodborne pathogens standard could be adopted quickly. These changes now go into effect as originally scheduled.

In Niles, its free eight-bus service costs about $125,000 per bus per year. The ABT $800,000 sales tax return would be a bonanza for its community. Not only would the residents benefit but businesses would profit with the free buses by bringing customers directly to their stores. It would keep the money in the community further enhancing the business community and adding increased sales tax returns.

Niles village manager, Abe Selman, told us if he'd known ABT was moving from its MG Waukegan Road store he would have tried to find space for enlarged quarters on Touhy Avenue. Instead, ABT is building a block-long facility on Milwaukee Avenue north of Glenview Road in Glenview.

Glenview and School District 34 will be the beneficiaries of this move as will the Niles library district which is in its district. Niles-Morton Grove school dist. 67 1/2 along with Morton Grove's village and park districts will lose this future property tax until a large retailer takes over ABT's Waukegan Road quarters.

Death never takes a holiday... and we seem to be writing an ongoing obituary column in this space.

A "full house" showed up at Weinstein's funeral home last week for the Golf Mill and Morton Grove theatres' Bene Stein's memorial service. A couple of the speakers reminded the mourners Bene would have liked the large turn-out.

Bene touched the lives of many through his many personal activities. He was president of the Chicago-branch of the Variety Club and befriended many famous people. After movie star Cary Grant died his widow sent Bene a note thanking him for his friendship.

Bene was a big lovable guy who may well have been the Cubs baseball team's number one fan. Annually, he'd visit their winter training camps and was ensconced in a Wrigley Field box seat alongside the field at hundreds of games throughout the regular seasons. He was in the eye of the camera many times and was in Kup's Sun Times column regularly.

Ben Bentley also died last week. He was a boxing promoter, manager, T.V. sports host as well as a former publicity flak for the old Chicago Bulls, whose Benny the Bull cheerleader was named for Bentley. He was a warm affectionate man beloved by all who knew him. We first met him at a party in Florida and subsequently was at his daughter's bas mitzvah. As the Chicago Tribune's Bob Greene wrote, he was a Willie Loman seat-of-your-pants kind of guy who was one of a kind, always hustling. Like Mike Royko and Studs Terkel, Bentley was an original, a Chicago-street guy who was always on the move, trying to give the guys he worked for an edge — but doing it with softness and gentleness. His sweetness made him someone special.

Basketball star Andy Phillip also died last week. Andy was a member of the early-forties Illinois basketball teams which won back-to-back championships in 1941 and 1942, before he marched off to war.

In 1946 I had just joined the university's Daily Illini sports staff. At the beginning of the basketball season I was in the hospital when Phillip was wheeled into my room and became my roommate. I thought this was a great opportunity to get an interview for the newspaper. But as luck would have it, Phillip was not allowed to talk. He had just had his tonsils removed. The hot-shot reporter lost what he thought would be his first "Illini sports scoop."

In that first post-war class, 200 candidates applied for jobs on the Illini sports staff. When I missed covering a couple of games due to my hospital stay the sports editor replaced me with one of the remaining 200. Fifty years later the reporter who missed the great Andy Phillip sports scoop wound up in Niles and Morton Grove and the Illini sports editor, Gene Shalit, went back home to New York and became the longtime movie critic for NBC's Today Show.

the money and ran out without speaking a word.

Niles police are not sure if the dye pack exploded; there were no indications it did within the area close to the bank.

The robber's description, per the Niles police, in general matches that provided by the FBI. The suspect in the Niles incident is described as having a light complexion, two to three days' of beard growth, wearing jeans, a black coat, knit cap and gloves. He is estimated to be 25 to 30 years old and 5-foot-10 to six feet tall, with medium build.

Anyone who feels he has information is asked to call the FBI at (312) 431-1333.

woman that he liked so much, he feared losing her. She came from money, Rabin said. He felt he couldn't keep up with her lifestyle.

So in 1998 he robbed two banks—one in Skokie and one in Glenview. Rabin said he would hand tellers a note demanding money and show them a gun that he said wouldn't fire, nor would he have injured anyone.

The judge reminded him that the tellers didn't know that.

He was arrested while driving away from a bank with a .32 caliber revolver in his pocket and $3,242 stuffed inside his shirt.

Telling police "I wish I was dead," Rabin added, "I can't believe I did something so stupid."

Highway 59 near Army Trail Road. He will be held in custody until a bond hearing.

Jayne's uncle, Silas Jayne, served seven years in prison during the 1970s for conspiring to murder his brother and rival, George Jayne. Silas died in 1987.

In 1988 Frank Jayne Jr. served two years in federal prison for selling cocaine at Northwestern Stables.

This latest indictment results from the 12-year-old re-examination of Helen Brach's disappearance. Along the way, the probe uncovered murders and arsons in connection with the killing of show horses for insurance.

Only recently had the probe taken another look at the 1984 Morton Grove fire.

fees will be modified.

These matters will be resolved May 15 at the next board meeting, and will also discuss whether to pursue another referendum.

District 71 has received a grant for a new student grading program. This technology, which was presented to District 71 by Technology Integration Program, will allow teachers to enter grades into a computer software program.

Assistant Vice Principal Janice Geisheker says this program will provide more efficient communication between teachers, administration and office staff.

Maine East student recipient of Illinois College scholarship

Illinois College in Jacksonville has awarded a Freshman Academic Scholarship for 2001-2002 to Sean M. McNeill of Niles. Mr. McNeill is the son of Dan and Sandra McNeill.

Mr. McNeill, a senior at Maine East Township High School, is among a group of over 200 high school seniors from across the country named by the liberal arts college as scholarship recipients for the coming academic year.

The Illinois College's Freshman Academic Scholarship is a selective program with awards ranging from $6,000 to $18,000 over a period of four years. The scholarships are awarded to students presenting an outstanding record of academic achievement and leadership.

Founded in 1829, Illinois College was the first college in the state to award the bachelor's degree. Today, the four-year, private college enrolls more than 900 men and women in programs leading to the Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees.
