Abatement districts take a bite out of mosquitoes

osquito abatement is actively underway in both the North Shore and Northwest Mosquito Abatement Districts.

Both districts have already begun larviciding, the process that involves using insecticides to prevent larval mosquitoes from reaching their adult forms. Recent heavy rains have also raised concerns about mosquito breeding, which can occur in any water that stands for seven days.

"The rains have picked up and that's a concern," said Mike Szyska, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District, that covers part of Niles and Park Ridge. "We're entering a wet spring and when the ground is saturated there can be a lot of standing water."

This standing water provides the perfect breeding ground for nuisance mosquitoes, which are mostly harmless and also for the more dangerous Culex mosquito, carrier of the West Nile Virus.

"Culex mosquitoes are primarily container-breeding," said Szyska. "That means that they'll breed in wheelbarrows, watering cans, gutters, children's toys, bird baths, and even pools."

Concerns about West Nile were raised early this year, after infected birds and mosquitoes were found in DuPage County. Those mosquitoes were a less-common variety that are not known to transmit to humans.

"It's not unusual to find bird this early in the season," said Szyska. "But finding infected mosquitoes this early is not a good sign."

Bob Barry, director of the North Shore Mosquito Abatement District that covers Morton Grove and the remaining portion of Niles, said that larviciding in his District began in April and that they are conducting a variety of out-reach programs to educate residents on what they can do to mitigate the risks of contracting West Nile.

"We have a 20-minute information video available through municipalities and libraries," said Barry. "It tells residents how to get rid of standing water in their yards and provide other tips to make themselves safer."

Both Barry and Szyska agreed that not much was known about nyone building a new home in Morton Grove will only be able to build on 60 percent of the lot or less after the village board approved a maximum floor-toarea ratio (FAR) at last Monday's meeting.

The new FAR will limit construction on a particular lot. It includes square-footage on any floor that is more than 50 percent above ground which includes the first and second floors of a home, its basement and garage, but not a cellar, which is defined as 50 percent or more underground. It was approved as a text amendment to the zoning code.

"A lot of communities are looking at the problem of tear-Village downs," said

Ralph Administrator Czerwinski. "This is a way for us to control the mass of a structure on a particular lot that's above grade."

The amendment is a response to a problem facing many communities as property values rise and new residents want more house for their money. The amendment does not include paved space such as a driveway or patio.

"This is not unique to our community," said Czerwinski. "It went through a hearing process and it was decided that it would be a way to provide additional controls as to what can be built on a particular lot."

Czerwinski felt that the amendment wouldn't stifle residential development, but would provide for appropriate develop-

"This doesn't stymie development," he said. "It just provides for appropriate development."

At the meeting, residents stood up to complain that the village was altering its zoning

Half of those trees will go to replace trees that were taken down in the last year and the other half will be planted in new sites. The program is designed to create an urban forest.

Noreiga said that the Public Works Department is compelled to remove about 100 trees each year that have been the victims of storm damage or disease. He stressed that the creation of handle roadside pollution well." an urban forest requires a long-term commitment and patience.

"We need more than 1000 trees," said Noreiga. "Because we're limited to 100 per year it will take ten years. But if I could get additional trees then I could finish earlier. The urban forest is very important."

Choosing the varieties of trees to plant each year is also a challenge for Public Works. The maple tree is the most common in Niles so few of those will be planted this year. Several varieties of hardwoods will be planted including sycamores and ginkos.

"The ginko is a big tree and it grows," said Noreiga. He added that many communities are using the ginko tree more extensively because of its rapid growth and durability. "I can count the number of ginkos in Niles on my fingers and toes," said Noreiga. "They're very nice and hardy trees that bidding went as shown. The Pakistani pair were using a system called SAAPP (Stone-Age Acol with Pakistani Pre-empts). The opening three-club bid by Fazli was artificial and indicated one of seven different types of hands! The actual nature of the hand would presumably be described later on by the three-club bidder.

Ata-Ullah responded artificially with three hearts, aware that if Fazli's three-club bid was based on a long, solid suit, it could not be hearts. Fazli thereupon jumped to four spades, indicating a powerful eight-card spade suit, one ace and also a void in an unspecified side suit!

Ata-Ullah's five-club bid showed first-round control of that suit, and Fazli's five-diamond bid identified his void in diamonds. This was all North needed to know, and he jumped to six spades, closing the bidding.

There was nothing to the play. Declarer ruffed the diamond lead, cashed the A-K of trumps and king of clubs, then led a heart, easily making the slam for a score of 1,430

It was a magnificent triumph for the SAAPP system. The identical deal was played at four other tables, and at each of them the South player opened the bidding with four spades. This was followed by three passes at each table.

Perhaps we would all do well to learn SAAPP ASAP!

Tative Norwegians and Americans of Norwegian L descent swarmed Park Ridge last Sunday for an annual gathering to celebrate Norway's Constitution Day, "Syttende Mai," the 17th of May. The event, which has been held in Park Ridge for several years, is sponsored by the Norwegian National League of Chicago. It drew participants and attendees from as far away as Barrington.

Marino of Chicago. "We're all Norwegian, except me."

The Masvie Family of Aurora said that they come to the festivities in order to introduce their children to the Norwegian culture.

"We want to let our kids get an idea of what being Norwegian is about," said Inger Masvie.

The Masvies were wearing several different traditional Norwegian outfits. According to Inger and her husband, Torkild, the clothing is generally worn on special occasions such as weddings, confirma-

Each region of Norway has its own specific traditional clothing. The Masvies were wearing outfits specific to the North Troendelag and Troms regions.

"Members of the Norwegian Parliament wear them whenever they're involved in official proceedings," said Torkild, adding that the all-wool men's outfits were, "not made for Chicago's climate."

of performance and value. It is important to use noncorrosive nails and hardware to avoid unsightly stains.

Setting redwood posts: Setting posts is the most critical part of the job. They must be straight and evenly spaced, which requires patience and lots of measuring. Construction Heart grade redwood is the right choice for fence posts because it resists decay and insects 4. Attaching redwood railings:

Two or three horizontal rails run between the posts, depending on the fence height. Upper rails . should rest on the tops of the posts for support. Bottom rails can be toenailed into place, but yard amenities, like pools, spas the preferred method is to place a block underneath the joint for extra support. Use metal hardof choice for fences because it is ware, such as "L" brackets, to secure rails to posts.

5. Nailing redwood fence boards: Nailing the fence boards in place is the easiest and most wood fence. Fence building isn't satisfying part of building a difficult. Here are some tips for fence. Near the ends of the board, successful fence building from predrill holes before nailing to avoid splitting. For fence boards four inches wide or less, use one 1. (Continued from page 18)

The following five tips can help: 1. Find Common Ground-Select a few items you both really love and scale their color schemes and styles to flow throughout the entire room

This will place the focus on things you both enjoy. Place items beloved by one but not the other in a guest room, so they're not seen every day, but are still part of the overall decor.

2. Color is Key-Pick a color palette that you both love with accent colors that can incorporate both of your furnishings. Color can really harmonize different styles such as traditional with modern. One aid for couples is an online color tool called ColorSmart by Behr that allows you to browse a collection of inspirational color palettes, find your favorite color and coordinating color palette and preview in a simulated environment.

3. Like with Like-Partner various styles to mirror congruent shapes. such as curved with curved and rectilinear with rectilinear.

For example, an Eames LCW chair from the mid 1940s will complement a Swan Chair from the late 1950s since both have curved styles although they come from different time periods. Don't worry about mixing various shapes and

Focus on the scale of the objects so that the items balance each other out. For example, a camelback sofa could be paired with a modern coffee table, as long as they are in proper proportion to one another. 4. Go Neutral-If you're going to mix varying styles and colorful objects, consider choosing a neutral and unifying scheme for the

Some good examples of neutral colors are Weathered Sandstone, Toasted Wheat or Cottonseed. They're all available in Behr Premium Plus Paint, sold exclusively at The Home Depot.

5. Experiment Wisely-If one of you is bold about color and pattern and the other isn't, don't take risks on things like tile and flooring that are difficult to replace. Experiment with things that can be easily changed such as paint, slipcovers, curtains and accessories.

Most importantly, Stephen Saint-Onge recommends that couples have fun. "Your home is a reflection of you, your personality and your lives together," Saint-Onge said. "Have fun and enjoy the process. It is just one of the many journeys in life that you will share together.'

You can find the ColorSmart by Behr online tool at www.behr.com Even the marriage of true minds may not mean wedded bliss for your furniture. Fortunately, a little forethought can help.
